FOR SCHOOLS

The Oregon legislature, if and when it meets in special session in October, will, in addition to providing funds for the winter relief program in Oregon, also be requested to create a fund for the emergency support of schools handicapped by the delinquency in tax payments in the various counties.

C. A. Howard, state superintendent of public instruction, estimates that at least $1,000,000 will be needed to keep all of the schools open during the next year unless tax payments come in. At the present time state aid for schools is limited to the revenue from the 2-mill elementary school tax which is a levy on real property and which, like other property taxes, has broken down. While all schools have opened this fall many are doing so entirely on faith and on heavy sacrifice on the part of teachers who have not only taken a cut but a chance on getting their pay until warrants become cash.

The situation may right itself to some extent if the farm income turns out to be as good as some believe it will be. If the farmer makes money on his crop this year, taxes will probably be one of the first matters attended to.

WHAT IS THE HOME LOAN PLAN?

Designed to assist home owners in danger of foreclosure by mortgagors, the home owners' loan corporation act was passed by congress last June and in this district is functioning under C. J. Shorb, La Grande, district manager.

A loan on a home may be obtained amounting to 80 per cent of its value for a period of 15 years at 5 per cent interest, provided the holder of the mortgage will accept government bonds. If not, the government will advance cash to pay off indebtedness that is not more than 40 per cent of the value of the property. In either case it will advance cash to pay off delinquent taxes. If there is no mortgage, a small cash loan may be obtained to pay delinquent taxes or make necessary repairs. A cash loan draws 6 per cent interest.

There is no intention of the corporation entering into the loan business in competition with existing loaning agencies. Its mission is merely that of salvaging homes of those people who are temporarily unable to meet their obligations. The act should prove of much help to burdened home owners.

MIRACLES

What do you mean, the age of miracles has ended.

A dog barks into a microphone at Schenectady, New York, and is barked at by his own voice which has encircled the globe by means of radio, traveling a distance of 25,000 miles in almost less time than it takes to tell it.

These and countless other prodigies of mechanical invention pass as mere commonplaces, yet if anyone had told our grandfathers that such things would be a part of the routine of daily life, he would have been dismissed as an irresponsible fanatic.

A man today who doubts or says he doesn't believe this or that is a most presumptuous individual. He fails to see that science is making demands upon human credulity that religion has never made.

TIMES ARE BETTER

Secretary of Labor Mrs. Perkins should be the best of authority on the matter of economic conditions in the United States. Her late report on the progress of industrial recovery is most cheering. Here is a summary:

The number of people who found employment in factories in August was 380,000; in the non-manufacturing groups, 370,000.

The factory employment gain over July was 6.4 per cent and the payroll increase 11.6 per cent.

Mrs. Perkins reported a gain of 2,200,000 in employment in both manufacturing and non-manufacturing industries since March, the low point. This, she points out, was a gain of 29.9 per cent.

On the other side of the picture, Mrs. Perkins pointed out that the unemployment is yet 28.4 per cent below the normal in 1926 and that payrolls are forty-eight per cent below that year. The August employment index, however, reached the highest point in more than two years and the payroll figures were the highest since December, 1931.

Of eighty-nine industries surveyed, eighty-one reported increased employment last month and eighty-three had higher payrolls as compared with those of July.

In current street comment there is considerable discussion as to what, if any, progress is actually being made in the effort to revive industry but figures, covering the nation, are the best of evidence.—Ex.

THE SEVENTY-NINE CENT DRESS

Yesterday a woman complained that the price of a house dress that sold for 79 cents six months ago had been somewhat increased. No doubt true, and let us seek the cause.

One of the greatest infamies in this country, until recent labor codes went into effect, was child and sweatshop labor. Women and children, employed at piece work, labored long hours—in garrets, perhaps for wages as low as two dollars a week. Mrs. Perkins, our new secretary of labor, with the assistance of the press, placed before the public the shocking story of sweat-shop competition.

Under former conditions these cut-price garments, the products of wage slavery, were commonly featured as leaders. Manufacturers who wanted to be decent found themselves at disadvantage. The economic disease—and it was nothing less—was steadily spreading until the government stepped in and put a stop to it.

Under the adoption of labor codes child labor has been done away with and no longer will half-starved women labor for a pittance in order that low-grade garments may be sold for a fraction of their worth. Even now the wages of these workers are low, but at least they permit of decent existence.

Good citizens, upon reflection, will not care to save a few pennies on a garment at the expense of women and children who heretofore toiled long hours for a weekly wage that forced them into half-starved slavery. All of which is a reminder that if a seventy-nine cent house dress, or comparable garment, has been increased slightly in price the fact does not mean that there is any injustice in the procedure, the former price having been too low to permit the farmer who grew the cotton or the woman who plied the needle to earn a livelihood.—Caldwell News Tribune.

It's cheaper to buy the best

Many men who thought they were saving money by buying cheap overalls have found out their error. Prove it by buying a cheap overall and an Oshkosh B'Gosh Overall and wearing them every other day. You will still be getting good service from the Oshkosh B'Gosh long after the other is in the rag bag. You'll be comfortable on Oshkosh B'Gosh days and cussing on the others. And you'll be "off" cheap overalls for life.
