TENSEN LIKES DRAINAGE WELL

Pete Tensen is enthusiastic over the success of the drainage well recently completed near his place.

"This well is located just below the ditch bank," Mr. Tensen said, "on land which once raised alfalfa eight feet tall, but which last year was little more than a swamp. It was so water-logged. The water was in furrows, and a quarter mile from the site of the well the water level was only six inches from the surface.

"One week from the time we started to pump, the surface was dry and the water table had dropped two feet over an area more than a quarter of a mile away, and it is still going down. You can tell the people that I am convinced that wells are the solution of our drainage problem," he added.

Greatest Pendleton Round-Up Ready—September 13th is the Opening Day

Action like this will bring folks to their feet at the famous old Pendleton Round-Up Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 13, 14 and 15.

"This year I'm heading for the Pendleton Round-Up!"

From ranch and farm, city and town, on all sides one hears it—"This year I'll see the Round-Up!" Some of the ardent fans of the famous Pendleton exhibition have missed seeing the show during the depression years, but indications from all points are that the folks of the Pacific Northwest will be there in record breaking throngs, September 13, 14 and 15 for the Round-Up's "Silver Jubilee" anniversary.

While the backbone of the Round-Up is the competition for championships in bucking, roping, bulldozing and racing, this historic show, unlike nearly all of the 85 rodeos that have sprung up throughout the country, is not limited to these events.

The color and pageantry of the Round-Up which faithfully reproduces the old West, sets it apart as a frontier exhibition. No other show witnesses the colorful spectacle of 2000 Indians encamping in tepees on the grounds and participating in ceremonial dances in the arena each afternoon. The Umatilla, Nez Perce, Yakima, Cayuse and Walla Walla Indians take part, wearing head-dresses and regalia that have been handed down for five generations. Hundreds of Indians participate in "Happy Canyon," a nightly pageant of the conquest of the West. "Happy Canyon" and the "Mission Play" of Southern California, rank as the two greatest pageants native to the West.

On Friday, September 14, the "Westward Ho" parade at Pendleton will contain a greater display of the relics of the pioneer West than ever before. It is historic in aspect, showing the explorers, Indian fighters, miners, covered wagon trains, pioneer towns and all early forms of transportation. In it are stage coaches of the "Fifties, ancient freight wagons, pack trains, ox teams and buckboards. The stage coaches with their rawhide thoroughbraces, have bullets lodged in them that testify of troublous days when "road agents" had to be reckoned with.

While entries are coming in daily from nationally famous contestants such as Bob Crosby, Everett Bowman, Floyd Stillings, Ike Rude, Hugh Strickland, John McEntyre and scores of other leading buckaroos of the United States and Canada, much interest is centered this year on the "wild ride" which is to be a special thriller, introduced this year to celebrate the Round-Up's 25th anniversary.

"Wild Ride Greatest Thrill!" Probably the greatest thrill that Round-Up throngs have enjoyed in a quarter of century of breath-taking events packed with unexpected "hair raisers" will be the "wild ride" staged each day in the arena. Fifteen vicious bucking horses will be saddled all at once. When the blindfolds are jerked from the horses eyes and the "snubbing" hands release the buckers simultaneously, each with a daring rider picked from the country's leading contestants, the epochal "wild ride" will be on. Large as the Round-Up arena is, it takes real western courage for cowboys to enter a bucking contest such as the "wild ride".

Dr. Wilson D. McNary, serving his second year as president of the Pendleton Round-Up, calls attention to the fact that admissions, reduced last year to meet depression pocketbooks, will remain at the same low 1933 level; yet the Silver Jubilee Pendleton Round-Up is certain to equal if not surpass all of the exhibitions staged at Pendleton in the last 25 years.
