RETURN FROM SUCCESSFUL TRIP

Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Abbott and Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Pruyn returned Friday from a very successful fishing trip in Idaho. The party left week before last, and stopped two days and fished at Boulder Creek in Idaho, from there they went to the Little Salmon river. They went over a new CCC road from Riggs to Bergdorf. From the top of the hill they could look down and see eight roads over which they had traveled. At Marshall Lake, where they made their final camp they found the very best of fishing, and had a nice catch to bring home to show. An unusual incident of the trip was encountering a snow storm at Marshall Lake, which was quite a novelty for the Nyssa folk. They returned by way of McCall, completing an enjoyable vacation.

MRS. WADE ADDRESSES WCTU

At the well attended meeting of the W. C. T. U. last Tuesday with Mrs. Fauchier as hostess, Mrs. Elizabeth Wade gave a fine talk. She stated Petersburg, Alaska, became the most prosperous city in Alaska as a result of prohibition, under Woodrow Wilson's administration; but with their billions they put up tremendous buildings for the shipment of liquor after their repeal.

She stated the need for Christian education in Alaska is great especially in Cordova where the Presbyterian church is open to her when she arrives there. She made special emphasis on what she thought was the most marvelous thing about Alaska. They abolished all creeds there and there is harmony among all Christians.

At the close of the meeting the hostess served ice cream and cake. The next meeting will be with Mrs. Emma Hawkins.

Owen Price spent the 4th in Baker and La Grande.

Felton Duncan and family had 4th of July dinner at the John Muhl home.

NATIONAL FOREST FIRE REGULATIONS ARE ANNOUNCED

Cooperating with the states in forest fire prevention regional forester C. J. Buck announces the following regulations effective July 1, on the twenty national forest of Oregon and Washington:

1. No campfire without a permit from a forest officer unless the fire is in a safe stove or at a forest camp where notices are posted that no campfire permits are required.

2. No smoking while traveling in timber, brush, or grass areas, except on paved or surfaced highways.

3. All camp outfits must include a shovel not less than 36 inches long with a blade not less than 8 inches wide; an axe not less than 2 pounds in weight or with a handle less than 26 inches long; and a bucket of at least a gallon capacity. It is pointed out that these items are generally part of a normal motor or pack outfit for the woods but that campers should see that they are not omitted from the lists.

Under stricter closure provisions special fire hazard areas within the national forests are closed to entry except with permit issued by the local forest officer. Such permit, however, is not required of any actual settler going to or from his home. Such districts of special fire hazard include dense snag areas, windfalls, and similar danger areas within the Columbia and Mount Baker national forests in Washington; and the Mount Hood and Willamette national forests in Oregon.

By State proclamation similar closure regulations have been made effective for special fire hazard areas within and adjacent to the Mount Hood national forest (Oregon) on the South Fork of the Clackamas and Mud Creek districts; within the Willamette National forest (Oregon) on the North Santiam, Seven Mile Hill, the North Fork of the Willamette, Portland Creek Burn, and the South Fork of the McKenzie districts; and within and adjacent to the Columbia national forest, Washington, on the old burn, west and north of Skamania county.

Pull cooperation from the public is asked by the U. S. forest service for the summer fire prevention campaign. "From 60 to 70 per cent of our forest fires are man caused," said C. J. Buck. "They are mainly caused by careless smokers and campers. This carelessness is not intentional, but it is nevertheless exacting a tremendous toll each year from Oregon and Washington. It is destroying merchantable timber, despoiling fish and game areas, and marring the scenic beauty that attracts visitors to our Western States. It is robbing the citizens of this region of their birthright. It is devastating hundreds of thousands of acres of logged off land each year, destroying the young growth which is the only hope of our communities for continued timber pay rolls when the old stands are exhausted."

FIRECRACKER BURNS FATAL TO CHILD

Fourth of July fireworks claimed one life in Boise valley when Della Kile, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Kile of Meridian, died at noon Friday in a Boise hospital as a result of burns.

Her clothing caught fire Thursday evening, presumably from firecracker sparks. It was believed the little girl, playing alone in her yard found a firecracker and lighted it. Her flimsy dress caught fire and was completely burned. Neighbors extinguished the flames and rushed her to the Boise hospital.
