COINS

How many of you know there is a coin and currency collector in our midst? He has his collections fastened to a background, placed under a glass and occupy an honored place in his home. We are speaking of H. D. Holmes, who has one of the best privately owned collections of coins in this part of the state.

Asked why he selected coins for his hobby out of the large number of hobbies in existence he replied, "I don't know for sure. I happened to get one or two old coins some 40 years ago. Then a boy in Philadelphia gave me 6 pieces, and the bug bit. Since then I have been collecting coins, sometimes buying them and I've also had them given to me."

Giving preference to age, the oldest coin probably should be mentioned first. It is an 1808 half dollar and next in age comes a dime dated 1838. It is an old timer showing a lady sitting holding a flag.

His oldest quarter bears the date of 1854 while one of his favorite coins is called "The Flying Eagle," dated 1858 and gets its name from the outstretched wings of an eagle, while only of one cent denomination, it is one of the most interesting.

Many nations are represented in the exhibit. Coins used in the South Sea Islands, South America, Honolulu, Japan, China, Germany, Holland

Mexico, Canada and Italy are all there, besides American coins.

A square shaped lead appearing coin comes from Moscow, Russia. There is a Canadian 1c piece; an Italian cent dated 1848; an 1854 fifty-cent piece; a Columbus head 50c piece; Mexican half dollar, Philippine 2 1/2c and a one cent piece dated 1862.

Some of these coins have been purchased at a much higher figure than their face value, and should Mr. Holmes wish to dispose of this unusual collection, it would bring a nice neat little figure, as old coins are at a premium.

He also has two 1/2c pieces, 2c and 3c pieces as well as English pence, half pence and farthing. More are mementos than as valuable coins is a good luck piece bearing the swastika insignia; several chips used in trade and the Oregon Trail Memorial coin of 1926. One of his most valued possessions is a rare medal made in Egypt of gold and silver, and in the shape of a horse's head. This medal was given him by a minister friend.

Mr. Holmes also has his currency collection in a glassed in frame, along with other mementos. He has $1, $5 and $10 Mexican bills, a Confederate $10 bill 10 shillings from the Bank of England, Canadian 25c bill, German Mark and two pieces of Indiana script made against the First National Bank of Indiana. One is in the unusual denomination of 37 1/2c.

Besides coins, there are arrowheads and other relics, not the least of which is a three-inch rooster spur—and there is a story connected with this spur, for it is supposed to have formerly been the fighting equipment of a tough old bird. This tough old rooster was not an ordinary chicken but was the grand-on of a rooster Brigham Young brought with him over the plains to Utah.

According to Mr. Holmes' story he has a friend who lives at Downey Idaho and this friend thought he would enjoy chicken dinner, so bought the old fellow from a neighbor. The rooster was cooked all day Sunday and Monday and was still pretty tough. The following Sunday Mr. Holmes was there for chicken dinner and afterwards found the spur in the yard, which his friend claims was a grand-son of the rooster Brigham Young brought across the plains.

NOTE: This first article by Jewel Rice Choate will be followed by a story about the person owning the most guns in Nyssa. If you have a hobby, we would be interested in learning the details and including it in this series of stories.
