MAKING BETTER MEN THROUGH CCC TRAINING—

HONORING the fourth anniversary of the Civilian Conservation Corps, Lieut. Elmer Cloning of Nyssa camp BR 926, as well as the commanders of all CCC camps in the United States, held open house last week, at which time the general public was privileged to thoroughly inspect the camp and learn first hand of the training the enrolled men were receiving and the methods used for their care.

Visitors to the local camp last week found the camp in excellent condition. Sleeping quarters, kitchen and dining hall were scrupulously clean, recreational halls ample and an educational program which cannot help but produce better manhood.

Proof that the sanitary conditions at the camp are of the best and that the food is well prepared and the personal habits of the boys watched over is well demonstrated by the fact that serious illness at the camp is almost unknown. The boys are healthy, contented and doing a fine job.

President Roosevelt has recommended to congress that the Civilian Conservation Corps be made a permanent institution. The Journal believes such a step would be wise. The CCC camps are and will continue to be worth every cent expended by the government in building better manhood and putting talents to constructive use.

OPPORTUNITY BECKONS IN MALHEUR COUNTY—

MALHEUR county is probably the fastest growing county in the United States today. This may seem like a bold statement made several times, and we believe it to be a fact.

Vast changes are taking place under our very eyes; changes which transform our own particular section of the county into a vastly different sort of community. The Owyhee dam, providing a stable water supply for thousands of acres near Nyssa, is attracting people from practically every state in the union. The Warm Springs and Beulah irrigation systems have brought a new meaning to agriculture near Vale. Ontario and Adrian both share in the benefits of the Owyhee project, along with Nyssa, and it is doubtful if the most careful searcher could find an agricultural county which is growing like Malheur today.

Literally hundreds of new farms have been established in the county the past two or three years; and by the highest type of settlers determined to make the desert bloom, and build real homes here in Oregon.

In 1930 the population of Malheur county, according to the federal census, was 11,269 people. This must be close to 18,000 today. Nyssa itself has jumped from 821 in 1930 to close to 1400 today. Ontario and Vale are both growing rapidly, but the real growth is in the country districts. Here settler after settler has come, bringing his family, and has started the task of building a farm and a home. Those who first received water from the Owyhee dam two years ago have already established very creditable farms and farm homes. Settlers near Vale have enjoyed water from their system for a slightly longer period, and many fine farms have been established.

But the great future is still before us. Ten years from today this entire Owyhee project, as well as the Vale project, will be one solid block of farm land . . . fenced and cross fenced; neatly painted houses and buildings; lawns, trees and flowers well established; roads built, mail routes in operation, school bus and cream trucks making their regular rounds.

We will see an extension of the type of agriculture which is becoming more popular the past few years. Principal crops will no longer be hay and grain, but each farm will also produce an acreage of sugar beets, lettuce, potatoes, onions, melons, peas, beans, and other types of row crops. Dairying and poultry will be popular. More hogs will be grown and many farmers will find stock feeding a popular and profitable off-season business.

The future of Malheur county in general, and Nyssa in particular is exceptionally bright, and we believe the majority will agree with us when we say, "Don't sell Malheur county short!" Help to build our community, step by step, with this greater vision in mind, and you can't go far wrong.

KINGMAN P.T.A. ELECT OFFICERS

Mrs. Chas. Newbill was elected president of the Kingman Colony P.T.A. Friday afternoon at the schoolhouse with Mrs. C. E. Elliott being named vice president; Mrs. Mary Nichols secretary and Mrs. D. I. Peterson as treasurer.

The unit voted to use funds from the treasury for five annual subscriptions to the National Parent-Teacher magazine the magazines to be passed around among members. Each issue of the magazine is full of authority articles to aid parent in a better understanding of the youth of the nation it is said.

The meeting opened by a dramatized reading lesson by the first grade students followed by an instructive playlet entitled "The Better Speech Fairy" given by students of the 3rd 4th and 5th grades.

During the business meeting plans were made for examination of pre-school children at a clinic being held at the Colony school today. Because of the number to be examined the clinic is limited to those children who will enter school next year and to the health class. Mrs. Edna Farris county health nurse, a doctor and dentist are helping in the clinic.

TERTELING GETS CONTRACT

Secretary of Interior Harold I. Ickes today announced award of the contract covering construction of eight miles of the Black Canyon Payette Division. B-ise project, to J. A. Terteling and Sons of Boise, Idaho, on their bid of $184,007.

The successful bid was the lowest of sixteen proposals received and opened by the Bureau of Reclamation at its Boise office March 12.

FISH ELECCROUCUT IN TESTING NEW GENERATORS

To absorb current generated during tests of the giants generators at Boulder dam a rheostat with a potential capacity of 18,000 volts—in effect a water heater of conventional type—has been installed. It is the largest water heater ever devised by man and operates on the same principle as the 110 volt apparatus used to heat the baby's milk.

In recent test fish swimming in the field of the rheostat were apparently electrocuted and floated on the surface, but once the current was turned off the fish floated outside the charged field, regained life and swam away quite unaffected by the experience of having tangled with the electric energy generated by the largest power plant in the world.
