OREGON TRAIL GRANGE PLAY HUGE SUCCESS

Speaking seriously, although it is difficult to do so with the lines of the three-act comedy presented by the Oregon Trail Grange at the Oregon Trail schoolhouse Friday evening still in mind, the play was a farce. Under the constant strain of ridiculous, the seven characters played their parts with seriousness and concern. Only an occasional smile, brief as a second, revealed that the actors were not living their roles, and the difficulty of controlling amusement with others laughing.

When all is said, the play was a huge success and met with the heartiest approval of the large audience that turned out.

The cast consisted of Aunt Emma, Mrs. Albert Hopkins; Louise Adair, Iva Adams; Kathryn Adair, Mrs. John Bowen; Dick Christianson, Albert Hopkins; Jack Norris, John Stam; Bud Gates, Klaas Stam; and Joe Sparks, Lloyd Adams.

Special music was prepared and given between acts by Mrs. Joe Stam, Vesta Maltberger, Mrs. Wm. DeGroff and Chas. Jones.

The play will be given at the Park schoolhouse Thursday evening April 22 and will be sponsored by the Oregon Slope Grange. The play will be repeated at the Kingman Kolony school house Tuesday, April 27 and will be sponsored by the Kingman Kolony Grange. Arrangements are also underway to take the play to the Big Bend community at a later date and will be sponsored by the Big Bend Parent-Teacher association.

Using Honey

By Mrs. W. W. Foster

As we work in the yards or gardens we find the bees now busy bringing pollen, carrying it from one blossom to another. Soon the fruit trees and hundreds of wild flowers will be in bloom which could not exist if the bees were not in the pollination business. For their hard and invaluable service nature rewards them with nectar. Fortunately for us, the bees store more nectar in the form of honey than they need for their own use. We are glad to have the surplus of food. To make use of this valuable food, American Honey Institute and producers and distributors are sponsoring Honey Week April 14-21.

At this time of the year when most of jellies and jams are gone as well as the fruit, we appreciate more than ever that delicious sweet direct from nature. It can be served on waffles or hot cakes these cool spring mornings or used in the children's lunches to give that much needed energy food.

Mix Honey with peanut butter or cottage cheese for sandwich spreads or use it in breads.

Many people whose digestive systems are tired of the heavy winter foods find they feel much better when they use only honey for all sweetening.

Honey will increase the energy value of any food and due to its mineral content, it is an alkali-yielding food similar to fruits and vegetables in this respect. Honey requires practically no digestion since its sugars are almost wholly available for immediate absorption into the body.

Most people who start replacing the sugars with honey use too much. The most economical and convenient way to use honey is known as the drizzling method. The honey is warmed and diluted lightly dispersed over the food to be sweetened or flavored. Place the honey pot in warm water for about ten minutes before using. Then drizzle tiny threads instead of pouring in a heavy stream. For general use a very satisfactory dilution is 3 cups of honey to 1 cup of hot water. Stir thoroughly and store in refrigerator.

Breakfast Fruits
All fruits to which sweetening is added are delightful when honey-drizzled. The flavor of citrus fruits has a new tang and intensity that stimulates the appetite.

Fig Bread (From Statesman)

Sensational "bait-pullers" seem to be the order-of-the-day. But that makes it none the less misrepresentation. No Merchant or Business regardless of how big, can offer you two or three times your money's worth. It simply isn't done by reputable business, that is, if they want to stay in business. Big promises sound wonderful to all of us—especially in some other location, (where the grass always seems to be greener). But DON'T be misled—
