

"Bumpograph" Aids Engineers Smooth Highways

E. L. Seltz, state highway engineer of California shown with his new invention, the "bumpograph," employed to chart unevenness in road surfaces. The device is so sensitive that it records tiny bumps only one-sixteenth of an inch high. Uneven spots are marked by the machine with chalk, which serves as a guide to the road roller for smooching the road.

Prominent Realtor Says Sugar Beets Are Profitable and Improve Land

The following letter was addressed to H. C. Baldrige by J. A. Stewart prominent real estate dealer of Blackfoot, who has accumulated considerable valuable knowledge in the cultivation of sugar beets and their effect on real estate values through many years of experience in the real estate business. The letter was first published in the Parma Review.

"Honorable H. C. Baldrige, Parma, Idaho.
Dear Governor:

"Again referring to your letter with reference to the sugar beet situation, I give you now my personal positive that if it was not for the sugar beet factories in this country and the revenue from the beet situation, that our land values would be nowhere near what they are or have been.

"It has been my experience that in territories where sugar factories are operated it adds materially to the value of real estate, not only for farm lands but city property. There is a great revenue derived from beets, and it is more widely distributed than any other crop raised, as the raising and harvesting of same take a great amount of labor. It also adds to the feeding of livestock, not only in dairying, but principally lambs and beef.

"It also causes farmers to be more consistent in building up their soil, and if properly handled you will see production raise materially wherever beets are grown. There is no crop that you could raise which would take more work, more effort to produce, than a beet crop. Now, I do not mean to insinuate that it is the best paying crop, but I do mean to say that it will add a great deal of wealth to any community where beets are profitably grown, and I am sure within the Upper Snake River Valley, where I am more familiarly acquainted, that if it was not for the sugar beet industry, that our lands would have nowhere near the value they do have.

"It is true that for several years the price of beets has not been too promising, but it looks at the present time that beets may go to $8. At least, I am reasonably sure that we will receive this year $7.00 and I am in hopes that the program can be worked out where beets will always be a fair price.

" Hoping that this will answer your former letter, I beg to remain Yours very truly,
"J. A. Stewart."

Cities Have Power To Ban Peddlers

University of Oregon, Eugene, April 29—Cities of Oregon may feel free to pass ordinances banning the "uninvited door bell ringer," it is declared in a bulletin entitled, "Restriction of Peddlers as a Nuisance," just issued by the League of Oregon Cities in cooperation with the Bureau of Municipal Research of the University of Oregon.

The bulletin, the work of the league's legal department, thoroughly reviews the "Green River" ordinance which has been the basis of considerable litigation. This ordinance which prohibits peddlers from entering private property unless invited by the owner or resident, has been sustained in the courts and its legality unquestionably established, the bulletin points out.

"Recently, the legality of banning the uninvited doorbell ringer has been established, thus opening up to cities a second form of control. By declaring the practice of going in and upon private residences uninvited to be a nuisance, cities may make such entry a misdemeanor."

The bulletin points out that in 1931 the city of Green River, Wyoming, determined that peddlers and solicitors frequently constituted an annoyance to the housewives and citizens of that community and an ordinance was enacted prohibiting uninvited entry upon private property as a nuisance.

This ordinance is not directed against the business but against the manner in which business is conducted, and extends to the manner of peddling and soliciting in interstate commerce when such conduct results in annoyance to individuals in their right to enjoy the peace and quiet of their homes free from the frequent disturbance of the uninvited doorbell ringer.

The Green River ordinance enjoins the practice of solicitors, peddlers hawkers, itinerant merchants and transient vendors of merchandise, in going, uninvited upon private premises for the purposes of peddling or soliciting orders for the sale of goods, wares and merchandise, and declares the same to be a nuisance punishable as a misdemeanor, the report states.

"To avoid charge of discrimination, the ordinance is drawn to apply equally to the local or transient peddler," it is stated. "Its enforcement requires evidence that the act complained of was disturbing and annoying to the housewife or other occupant of the premises and depends upon cooperative support of those disturbed."
