"The Harder I Work for You the Cheaper My Wages!"

"There never was a hired hand quite like me — one who cuts his own wages as he works harder.

"But that's what happens when you increase the use of your electric service. If I light your home and run your small appliances, I work for a certain wage. But if I keep your foods cool and fresh with electric refrigeration, my hourly wages go down.

"And as you turn over more and more of the hard work to me and put me to work on more and more labor-saving jobs — electric cooking, electric water heating — my wages per hour go down still more.

"So — the harder I work, the less I charge per hour. And because more and more people are using their electric service fully, Idaho Power's rates are among the lowest in the nation."
