TOWN TALK

Fun and Fancy about the Folks... Sometimes Original... Often time-worn.

THE SHORTEST THING IN THE WORLD... is not a gnat's eyebrow nor a mosquito's whisker, but PUBLIC MEMORY. You may have been in the business 50 years and the people know about it, but you have to tell them over and over or they forget.

Speaking of public loss of memory... who was vice-president when Wilson was president?

THERE ARE SEVERAL GOOD FIVE-CENT CIGARS IN THIS COUNTRY. SAYS CHARLEY CALDWELL, THE TROUBLE IS THEY SELL FOR 15c.

George: "Why were you late for work this morning?"
 Bob: "Well, you see, I squeezed out too much tooth paste and had a hard time getting it back into the tube."

WISSE WILLIE SAYS A MISS IN THE MOTOR IS NOT SO ANNOYING AS A MRS. IN THE BACK SEAT.

A Nyssa landlady became incensed when a new boarder proceeded to wipe off his silverware before eating. "In the first place," she informed him, "it's bad manners and in the second place, it soils the linen."

A man called in at the drug store, we hear, and ordered some of that efficient ant powder they have. "And do you wish to take it with you," asked Omer, just making conversation. "No," was the prompt reply. "I'll send them around and you just rub it on them."

Use of Sugar Cane
 Sugar cane, a coarse grass, is believed to be a native of Asia or the East Indies. It was unknown in Europe until the Middle Ages, when the Arabs introduced it into Sicily and Spain. Sugar cane was taken to Brazil about 1500, to Mexico a few years later, and is now cultivated in most warm countries. Two kinds of syrup are made from sugar cane. The first is the golden syrup left over from the manufacture of sugar. The second, such as a Mississippi plant will make, is merely the juice of the sugar cane boiled down, and is known as molasses.

STATEMENT ON THE BONNEVILLE BILL

Which Passed the House on July 26, 1937.

I notice from some Oregon press comments, just received, that incorrect conclusions have been drawn from the accounts going out from Washington covering the House debate and the passage of the Bonneville bill, H. R. 7642. I believe it is important that people in Oregon should understand about this bill, and so make the following statement and enclose copy of the bill as it passed the House, so far as copies are available.

The bill passing the House is a splendid document. It is a complete victory for the domestic and rural consumers of the Pacific Northwest. Anyone reading the debates in the Congressional Record can understand the strategy of the fight. The proposed May amendment, advanced by those who wished to duplicate the Niagara monopolistic absorption of Niagare electric energy, was decisively defeated three to one.

The Beiter amendment, in line with the position previously taken by Mr. Mott, placing the entire control of the project under the Army Engineers, was decisively defeated, four to one. The Pierce unit control amendment was defeated by 23 votes, due to pledge made by the California delegation in order to secure support for their Boulder Dam amendment. I appreciate the great construction engineering ability of the Corps of Engineers, and my position was based solely on the matter of costs and rates to the ultimate consumer.

The principal of the widest possible benefit and use, and the prevention of monopolization, around which the Pierce bill (H. B. 6387) was built, was incorporate verbatim in the bill passed. There are twenty-four paragraphs, excluding the Boulder project sections, of which number twenty-two, or 92 per cent are identical with the Pierce bill. The right of condemnation, authorization of contracts, the operation of the dam for the benefit of the general public, particularly domestic and rural consumers, and the preferential rights of public bodies are all preserved in the enacted.

The most important section, 3f, originally written by myself, was used identically in the bill enacted. This is a great aid and a stimulus to rural electrification and the utilization of Bonneville energy by public bodies.

The rate sections of the final House bill are identical with the Pierce bill, save for the Mansfield amendment, which was suggested to the Committee by me. This amendment provides that uniform rates, or rates uniform throughout zones, shall be mandatory. This change preserves the "yardstick" principle.

The only Pierce provisions eliminated were the abolition of the advisory board, and unit control. The advisory board, under the bill as passed, has no authority. The unit control principle, sought by the amendment I offered on the floor, has been accepted, in principle, by the Senate Committee, and will most likely be incorporated in the final bill, which will result from conference between the two Houses. The labor and pollution amendments, which I originally suggested to the Committee, can be handled through administration, though I would prefer to have them incorporated in the bill.

It's easy to identify an Englishman. His conversation sound as if it had been rehearsed.

The college graduate who set out so bravely some weeks ago to lick the world is now hollering for somebody to come help him turn it loose.

"The strip-tease is the backbone of burlesque," declares a New York showman who seems to be taking a backward view of the matter.

It seems that no matter where shooting breaks out on this globe, there's invariably a bunch of Americans present to do a lot of dangerous innocent bystanding.

Even if it were true that the New Deal is everything its proponents claim, there still would remain this all-important question: Can we afford it?
