Program Interesting
The program for the evening was started off by a recitation by a twelve year old farmer, Benny Rosenberg, entitled "Down on the Farm." This was followed by reports by various committees during which the Nyssa delegates asked that the next meeting be devoted to the subject of sugar beets and further backed Vale's invitation to hold the convention in that city. The convention voted to hold their next meeting there and to make the subject of the evening sugar beets. The date of the meeting was set for December 13.

Asks For 'Clearing House' Committee
Mr. Taylor of the Vale Chamber of Commerce asked for the appointment of a committee that would act as a 'clearing house', for the cities represented, for the purpose of keeping various communities from holding events on the same dates. Contracts For Beets Ready

It is expected that about 15,000 acres will be contracted, which is almost twice the acreage grown in 1937. This is the number of acres necessary to insure the successful operation of the factory now being constructed in Nyssa. All farmers intending to grow beets in the future are being urged to sign their contracts as soon as possible as there is a probability that the Department of Agriculture will place acreage restrictions on the 1938 crop, and it is important that actual contracts be signed before any acreage allotments are issued.

Harvest Underway
The harvest of the 1937 crop is now well underway, and after a weeks delivery, predictions of a successful tonnage are apparently being well borne out. It is expected that the peak of deliveries at the receiving stations will be attained within the next two weeks and that the harvest will be completed throughout the territory within a month.

Adding another business firm to the already growing list of new businesses coming to Nyssa, Harold Hoxie and Richard Smith, announced the opening of the Nyssa Garage in the Hoxie Building.

Modern Equipment
Proprietors of the Nyssa Garage have installed two innovations in garage business, one being the Allen Motor Tuner which is used for testing the entire electrical system of trucks and automobiles. The other is what is known as the Allen Combustion Analyzer, the function of which is to test the percentage of waste of gasoline.

The reason for the installation of the above equipment was to take the guess work out of automobile and truck engine repairing, according to Smith. He continued, "In the past it has been impossible for a mechanic to know exactly what was wrong with a motor. He had to make a guess at the trouble, and as often as not was wrong. With the Allen Testers it is now possible to diagnose within a few minutes just what and where the trouble is."
