Sportsmanlike Driving—Signal When Passing

Some motorists move on the highways as if they expected others to be mind-readers. It is particularly noticeable when two cars try to pass the third at the same time. Usually it results from failure to give signals. It is not Sportsmanlike Driving.

Sportsmanlike Driving—Protect Your Fenders

TURKEY FACTS CONTAINED IN NEW PROGRAM LEAFLET

Sixty-five per cent of the Oregon turkey crop is sold through independent dealers and 35 per cent through the four district cooperative associations. Seventy per cent of Oregon grown turkeys are shipped to out-of-state markets.

Latest Leaflet Out

This is part of a large fund of information pertaining to Oregon's two and one-half to three million dollar turkey industry found in a leaflet entitled, "Let's Talk Turkey," prepared by J. R. Beck, extension specialist in rural service, using data supplied by Noel Bennon, extension poultryman. It is the latest of a series of leaflets on different phases of Oregon's agriculture which Mr. Beck has prepared as program material for use of all rural organizations and other interested groups.

Cold Storage Shows Increase

As to the turkey situation this year, the leaflet shows that 7,989,000 pounds of turkeys were in cold storage in the United States on September 1 last year, while on the same date this year the pounds of turkeys in storage was 12,314,000. It is estimated that Oregon will market 700,000 pounds of turkeys this year, as compared with 800,000 pounds last year.

Food Ratio Shown

The pamphlet also shows that it takes an average of 75 pounds of feed to produce a turkey ready for market at 26 weeks of age, and that it requires from four to five pounds of feed to produce a pound of gain, from hatching to maturity. Early gains are the cheapest, it is pointed out.

Other feeding pointers indicate that feed costs can be reduced 10 to 20 per cent by using alfalfa, sunflowers, corn fields, etc., as pasture; that each bird needs six inches of hopper space, and that it is best not to give strong feeds, such as low-grade fish meal or inferior vitamin D fish-bearing oils, within the last six weeks before killing.

WINTER STORMS LESS HAZARD TO HIGHWAYS

With the improvement of Oregon's highway system during the past year, the coming winter storms will be less of a problem than ever before, it is pointed out by Ralph A. Coan, director of the Oregon State Motor association in charge of traffic.

Betterment of snow removal equipment and experience gained from an exceptionally hard winter last year will also be contributing factors toward maintaining travel on the highways, he said.

Recent improvements include elimination of many curves and widening of grades, it was explained, and these will aid materially in the usual battle against snow and ice.
