

Ye Snooper's Column
Things About Nyssa's Shops

Altho the harvest season has been piteous and the coffers of many have been added to, still there are those who through out the long hot summer did labor from dawn until far after the last brilliant glow of a sun late setting had been replaced by twilight in the spring had shivered in cold winds working in the blinding choking dust on the new land. Who now find themselves without harvest and the whole of their substance spent, with little mouths to feed and bodies to be clothed from the coming winter's cold. Soul weary they are and utterly discouraged. But still, we say to them to have courage, another year will come and with it new opportunities and a new harvest. For this week we did chat with a very interesting and happy person who has lived upon these lands many years and whose husband now is accounted one of the most successful, and she did tell us that not so many years ago, she did be in town and there on display saw her favorite magazine which she had not been able to buy for many months and it did cost a few cents. She wondered if the time would ever come when she could afford to buy it again. Now not so many weeks ago did we visit her home and there was a rack filled full of the latest and most expensive of magazines. This weary year is but a phase to those of you who are weary and do wonder if all the work is worth the gain. We do know that those who have already seen it through say "Yes. Carry on. In time will come peace and the joy of achievement."

The poor pheasants can now come out of their holes and flout themselves along the landscape until every hunter's fingers do itch to show them. But alas 'tis duck season now and Mr. and Mrs. Mallard and all their kin will take to the high altitudes or the opposite side of the river or in other ways known only to themselves disappear from the face of the earth. However there will be a goodly sum left that the good hunter will out wit, especially if his gun be loaded with those Western Super X shells that the Nyssa Pharmacy does dispense and the supply can always be renewed early and late and on Sunday too.

Only forty one more shopping days before Christmas! What a shock and we without a list even to begin on. But luckily there be those who have not been so short sighted and are already with new things to buy for gifts and among them is Omer Adkinson at the Owyhee Drug company. Today he did show us some new and pretty watches and at a price that did surprise us. What a dainty and acceptable gift they will make for some one.

And at Mrs. Johnson's Variety we did see a brand new stock of oven ware. A lovely new porcelain that will stand the heat of oven baking without disturbing its contents or and can be placed upon the table making no extra po's to wash. They are in all shapes and sizes to meet every baking need and at a price that will please thee.

And when thou hast purchased that new caserole step over to Wilson's grocery for we do know that they do have there every manner of food which one does use to concoct those delectable oven baked meals.

Now if thy boy friend or he that was they boy friend and the one whom thou doest call husband be a bit down at the mouth or caloused to thine allurements, take him over and treat him to an eyeful of feminine pulchritude displayed at the new Pix in Ontario, or let him thrill with a he man show at Roxy in Ontario. Every week these two showhouses do strut their stuff and always have entertainment that will please thine whole family.

And when thou hast returned to thine own domicile with the nights chill air still in thy bones put on the old perk and when its contents are steaming, get out some of those McClure Brother's doughnuts and have a dunking fest, or cut thyself a slice of their goblin cake. Thou wilt find it hard to get thy fill of them.

There is a man among us for whom there is always a word of praise. Al Thompson, who with his son Herschel doest run the Thompson Seed and Fuel mart. There thou wilt always get the best of what they have to sell and that Stancard coal will never disappoint thee.

We do regret that in Nyssa there are no automobile agencies and that we must always take our monies for these wares to other places but in our neighboring town there are several who do advertise in these pages, merchandise of merit and if thou doest visit them and mention the paper from where thou read the ad, they will most courteously and gladly demonstrate their machines and will always give thee a square deal.

It is nice to know that when one or all the members of the staff of our bank, the First National Bank of Portland do change that the policy of the bank remains unaltered and that who ever is there will intelligently and carefully attend to our banking needs. And because it belongs to a system long established we have here in our small community all the banking services of a great city bank. And the security of one as well.

At Main near Third there be a new garage. And yet it be not entirely new, for it be owned by Harold Hoxie who is a native son and who some years ago with his brother and his father did have a garage at this same place. But lately he has been in at Pendleton in a fine and modern place and now has come back and with him did come a first class mechanic, Sid Smith, and a lot of new and modern equipment to test and treat thy ailing heap, or next years beauty.

Art those tire thread bare but art putting off getting a new set until thy ship comes in. Sometimes that be a long wait, so in the meantime take those old ones to Ed at the tire shop and let him fix them or better yet break down and get a set of those retreads which he does have there. Thou wilt find that they will carry thee many a mile.

And hast thou been reading about Andy Gearshifts troubles, and these of his cousin little Alice Running gear and the rest of their tribe who have been weeping on Ed Pryn's shoulder. Well we do know that he has fixed all of their aches and pains and can fix any and all that thy carbiolet's of what ever vintage and make it perchance may be.

The days now are bright with a late autumn sun and we couldst publish our weather wares along with the finest that the southland do offer, but we know that the fickle weather man will take a sudden change of heart and will wish upon the wintry blasts from Greenland's icy mountains. Then will little hays chap and small ears little with the cold. But worry not for at the Wilson's emporium we did see the snuggest things in knitted caps and scarfs and mittens. One for everyone of the family and in a fine choice of colors.

Just one last word would we have with thee. Watch well thy stoves and thy fires. A fire at any time is tragic, but this year when there be no idle dwelling places it is doubly so. Take care of thy fires and then insure, that thou mayest be able to build anew if the need should come. We have two excellent firms who will advise thee and that right well what is best for thine own particular need. Call in at the Nyssa Realty Company on Main or at Mr. Frank Morgan's near the bank. Thou wilt then sleep easily.

Shop in Nyssa with Journal advertisers and ye wilt not waste thy gas and thy time going farther.
