"Say, Doc, when I get well, will I be able to eat anything at all?"

"Absolutely."

"Wonderful I never could eat my wife's biscuits before."

—Aberdeen Coal—
"Cutie, I can tell your thoughts just by looking at you."

"Oh, yeah. Then why waste your time just looking?"

—Aberdeen Coal—
An elderly actress told a young friend, "Men used to fight for my kisses." The catty friend boomed, "I know, dearie, but the war is over."

—Aberdeen Coal—
"The trouble with you, honey, is that you're lovesick."

"Well, maybe I am, but it will take more than a pill like you to cure me."

Wife (at phone)—How would you like to talk to my mother?
Hubby—Through a spirit medium.

—Aberdeen Coal—
Doc—I knew Miss Richwick when she didn't have a stitch to her name.

Patient—Does she have a lot of pretty clothes now?
Doc—No, I mean I operated on her last month for appendicitis.
