Prize winners in Idaho Power company's kitchen planning contest have been selected according to E. T. Frost, local manager. Hundreds of entries were received from Idaho and Oregon homemakers.

Kits Furnished
Each contestant was given a kitchen planning kit containing a miniature cardboard kitchen model complete with all appliances. Originality, taste and utility of arrangement were the points upon which each entry was judged. The cardboard model, made up to represent the contestant's ideas of kitchen planning, with an essay on the subject "Why I Want An Electric Kitchen" constituted an entry.

Winners Selected
In Idaho Power company's Payette division the first prize, an electric ironer, was won by Ruth A. Ketchum of Vale. Mrs. F. W. Fullerton, also of Vale, won an electric mixer as a second prize. Third prize, an electric waffle iron, was won by Grace Knipstra of Weiser, and Mrs. W. B. Jones of Weiser received an electric toaster for the fourth best entry.

Grand Prize Electric Range
Mrs. A. C. Rieker, Boise homemaker, won the grand prize with her entry. She received an electric range for her well-designed kitchen plans and essay. In part, she wrote: "I want to see over the horizon of my kitchen window and enjoy a few of the pleasures beyond. In fact, there are so many useful things to be accomplished outside the confines of the kitchen, that to do them valuable time, formerly spent in the kitchen, must be saved."

"The fact that I do my own dressmaking and tailoring, can fruits and vegetables, pursue a home study course and perform every household duty, in addition to finding time for a number of outside activities is unquestionable evidence that I must depend on electrical equipment in the kitchen."

"My meals, in which I take great pride, are not slighted that I might have time for some other task or pleasure; instead, with the use of electric equipment at my finger tips I achieve, in less time than ever before, a greater degree of perfection."

Mr. C. A. Matlock from the Owyhee has been ill and under the care of Dr. Sarazin, but is improving again.
