Local Boy A Poet

Buster Keizer's stay in the hospital was not a total loss of time for in the long days of convalescence he developed a poetical talent which had not been suspected before. The following will give the reader some idea of what a sick boy thinks as he lies in bed after day and cannot get out to play.

BEING SICK

It's not much fun to lay in bed. With a great big pillow under your head. Nothing to do but eat and read and sleep. And fret and fume at how still you've got to keep.

II.
The best part of it is the candy I get to eat. They say if I'm good I'll soon be on my feet. Another good thing I don't have to go to school.

And for a time at least

I'm not under a teacher's rule.

III.

They cut me open and took out my appendix. For he and I just didn't seem to mix. They also put a tube in my nose. The way it felt was like a garden hose.

IV.

They've fed me on soups and juices so long. To eat anything else would seem very wrong. But it won't be long till it'll be home with me. And all of this will be just a memory.

MY DOCTOR

I got good doctors, the best of the lot. Even though they stick me whether I like it or not. There's Doc Van der Vliet who comes every day. And he usually has a lot to say. II. He always has some medicine for me to take. (All they do is give me a stomach ache.) There's Doc Sarazin, a quiet man. Who'll bring his medicine when he can.

III.

And there's Doc Palmer. Oh there's a Doc. He'll cut you open like he would a sock. He takes those scissors and then Oh My! It makes you think you're gonna die.

IV.

Doc Tack's the who took my blood test. In doing that he proved he was one of the best. I guess I won't say any more. Except mine the the best, right down to the core.

NURSES AND SISTERS

When you enter the hospital you get a surprise. Nurses are running around like flies. They dash in one room and out the door. It seems they'd soon be all over the floor.

II.

They have a supply room where they get their things. And when they get in there the place just rings.

III.

Then there's the Sisters who call you all sorts of names. And you wonder if they're playing some kind of games. They talk to you and tell you to chew on your soup. And make you forget you feel like you're penned up in a coop.

IV.

But the Sisters will help you when you are in need. And that is a great comfort indeed. The Nurses here will help you too. And the whole hospital staff is certainly true-blue.

—Lester LeRoy Keizer.
