HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

By DR. JAMES W. BARTON
High Blood Pressure.

There was a time when an operation—usually the removal of the appendix—was a favorite, if not the favorite, topic of conversation among middle-aged men and women. Today, if it is not about the heart—angina, coronary thrombosis, leaking valves—it is about the blood pressure.

What is blood pressure? Blood pressure is the pressure made against the walls of the blood vessels as it circulates throughout the body. The physician measures this pressure against a column of mercury—just as we read the pressure of the atmosphere on the barometer.

Now the average individual has learned that if this pressure of the blood is too great against the blood vessel wall it may break through the wall and cause bleeding—hemorrhage—which bleeding will cause damage in the brain, heart or elsewhere according to where the lesion occurs.

The average individual also thinks that it is because the walls of the blood vessels have lost their elastic tissue—hardening of the arteries—that the pressure becomes so high, and this is often true. However, if the individual is excited or upset at the time of, or because of, the examination, or has just eaten a heavy meal, his blood pressure may be up as high as 20 to 30 points. A little quiet reassuring chat by the physician will often bring the pressure down to normal within a few minutes. Sometimes, of course, the pressure has to be taken a number of times; in the morning before breakfast is a favorable time.

Even when the blood pressure is "always" high, if the individual goes about his regular affairs or duties in life with ordinary care—no heavy work, light meals even if more meals are eaten, acquiring calmness or poise—he may never have the slightest symptom of high blood pressure and live just as long as if his blood pressure had been normal.

Dr. David Riesman, Philadelphia, in Annals of Internal Medicine, makes this statement: "An individual can live to eighty or even one hundred years with high systolic (blood being forced against vessel walls) blood pressure."

Frances Lee Barton says:

THE famous four and twenty blackbirds pie of nursery rhyme fame isn't the only pie that's fit to set before a king. Probably the runner-up for that distinction is an oyster pie—a savory, steaming oyster filling hidden beneath a tender pie crust. The very dish to make weary bread winners on a cold winter night whistle with conviction that grand old air. "Home Sweet Home"

Oyster Pie

2 cups sifted flour, 2 teaspoons double-acting baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 6 tablespoons butter or other shortening, ¾ cup milk (about), 2 cups drained oysters, ½ teaspoon salt, dash of cayenne, 4 tablespoons melted butter. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift again. Cut in shortening. Add milk gradually, stirring until soft dough is formed. Turn out on slightly floured board and knead 30 seconds, or enough to shape. Roll ½ of dough ¼ inch thick. Line a 9-inch pie plate, allowing dough to extend ½ inch beyond edge of plate. Fold inward even with rim of plate. Fill with oysters, sprinkle with salt, cayenne, and butter. Roll other half of dough ¼ inch thick, with sharp knife make slits to permit escape of steam. Fit over oysters, pressing edges together with floured fork. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 30 minutes. Serves 8.
