COW HOLLOW

The dance at the CCC camp Saturday night was very much a success. There was a very good crowd out, the music was fine and everyone seemed to be in a spirit to have a good time. There were three very spirited dancing contests for prizes and Nicolas DeJohn gave some special entertainment. Lieutenant was well pleased with the spirit of the dance and is going to continue having a dance every two weeks only on Friday night instead of on Saturday nights so this dance won't interfere with the dance in town. He promises us that his wife will be out to the next one, she has been unable to attend the last one owing to their small three weeks old daughter.

Chuck Share and Chet Sage traded horses Saturday Chet bought a young horse last spring and it proved to be very spirited and gave him much difficulty. Chuck has been watching the horse all spring and thinks he can handle the colt and quiet him down some. That is the kind of a horse trade we like to see. One that can be a mutual benefit to both parties and possibly make a fine horse out of what would otherwise be an outlaw.

Mort Wixon and Doc Rafington have both completed stacking their second cutting of hay. Neither of them have a hay edrick. A man with a good hay crop and no hay edrick sure has his problems.

Clarence Nicum is staking hay now with no derrick. We are all proud to have a good hay crop although it is lots of work to stack it with no derrick.

Many people are thinking seriously now about their next winter's stock water supply. Dale Linbaugh and Chet Sage have both started digging on their cisterns in their spare time.

Jack Parker, who about a month ago started a small feeder route for the Co-operative creamery, says that they have kept increasing his route until now he has better than a 40 mile route.
