WE STILL THINK THERE IS "SOMETHING ROTTEN IN DENMARK"

THIS sugar beet acreage allotment is still, to our mind, one of the strangest setups that has been shoved down the throat of the American farmer for a long time.

It is still stranger when it is learned that there has been "held in reserve" some 30,000 acres.
We wonder, why that reserve? It could be made to serve as a very potent political weapon.
It may never be used as such—but that 30,000 acres will hang ominously over the head of the western sugar beet grower, and until this situation is cleared up to the satisfaction of our growers we will maintain that "there is something rotten in Denmark."

THE VOTERS HAVE A MIND OF THEIR OWN

EVERY election year brings forth, on the part of most politicians, the accusation that the newspapers of the country are being bought or subsidized by the "opposition." We wonder—could it be that the politicians become sour when their views are not touted to the skies by every editor that they contact, and they try to contact all of the newspapers, both large and small?

It is our contention that the voters of this country have enough gray matter between their ears to do their own thinking. It is also our contention that the average editor is like the average voter—he too can do his own thinking, and is within his rights and province if he wishes to take sides in his editorial column. As to the press being "subsidized," that again depends on which side of the "fence" the newspaper happens to be on. In our short time in the journalistic field it has been our pleasure to have met a number of editors, both on larger dailies and the small weekly newspapers, and we have yet to hear one of them say that they refuse to take sides on an issue because they are being "subsidized."

It would, perhaps, be more to the politicians advantage if the most of them tried to keep the issue clear and uncolored, instead of trying to hide their own shortcomings by telling their 10:00 a. m. Sunday school for all.

10:30 a. m. Divine services. The sermon will be an answer to the question: "Who can forgive sins?"

Long before Columbus was born the Norsemen were sailing the seven seas to make raids upon lands which were unknown to other men.
Legend tells of Norse treasure ships laden with stolen ivory and gold which wandered too far north only to be frozen in the ice. The crew died, the ships became ice-bound in ice; there they remain even today, perfectly preserved.

Someday an arctic explorer may find these untouched treasures and become wealthy beyond his wildest dreams.

One of the greatest of the untouched treasures of today is happiness. Elusive, yes, not even understood by the majority of people today.

If you are interested, perhaps we can furnish a clue or two in our quest for the untouched treasure which is rightfully yours. Come any Sunday morning to our Sunday school or the services at 10:30 o'clock.

ing world."

This here new deals a rotten deal Says Silas Slokum Granger.
For the life of me, I just can't see How any sensible ranger Can finger cannon gall our beef—Way down in Argentine.
Is gonna help us guys, hey chief,
Can you? I jest can't seemta.

Now that thar deals a rotten deal You can't tell me that taint, for The beef and veal in cans the seal-
To feed us guys, up here sir, It fed on grass and grain and hay, alas,
That's grown by the southern farmers—
Their hired help should make us yelp.
It helps us not, but them sir.

Nor I can't see for the life of me, How plowin our stuff under,
Both hay and grain—our livestock slain,
Is helpin us, by thunder!
This shippin in the hay and grain.
The butter, beans and eggs in shell Hams, hides and wool, silk, butter, cotton, milk,
Knocks our markets all to —blazes!

By Old Sam Hill! I swear I will,
Jest stop a bein sappy—Sendin Walt to call a halt, Just makes new dealers happy.
His new deal votes have got our goats,
He's signed on dotted lines,
While we set by and sob and sigh—
And pay our numerous fines.
