Inflamed Lumps In the Neck

By
DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

WE HAVE all seen children with a lump in the neck—an enlarged lymphatic gland. The gland is really a filter which takes out poisons from the lymph and then allows the poison to go back into the blood stream in small amounts so that the system can absorb it gradually.

Thus in infected tonsils it is not unusual for these swollen glands to hold some of the poison within their tissues for as long as two years after the tonsils have been removed.

Now a swollen gland can be a source of gradual poisoning of the system, particularly if the youngster is run down, has infection in teeth, tonsils, sinuses or has tuberculosis. It is often of help to him physically therefore to have the gland come down to its normal size again.

Removal May Be Wise.
If the gland is broken down it is usually removed by surgery, but naturally the physician or surgeon does not like removing any lymph glands because "every gland that is needlessly removed weakens by just so much the ability of the system to protect itself against all infections. However, it is a serious mistake to allow enlarged glands to cause such inflammation of the surrounding tissues as to make it necessary to remove parts of muscles, with the possibility during operation of injuring important nerves and blood vessels."

When the gland is actively inflamed—adenitis—causing pain or distress, the X-ray is now being used.

Flat Feet.

An elderly man consulted his physician about a pain in inner side of his right knee. Examination showed a flat foot which allowed the lower leg (below knee) to swing inward thus putting strain on inner side of knee. A plaster cast was taken of the foot, a support made and the pain in the knee disappeared.

Flat feet are common and if not brought up by exercise or supports or both, it may mean other symptoms besides painful feet. The knee joint and all the joints in the spine between bones are put under a strain when the arch of the foot falls.

The first thought in the majority of cases of flat foot is to try to strengthen the muscles which hold up the arch of the foot, making the foot look like a claw.

Two simple exercises done twice daily to a count of 20 each are:

1. Trying to grasp a marble or other object with the toes.
2. Raising the body slowly from heel to toe, holding a few seconds, and then coming down slowly.

A third exercise is to walk around the room three times on the outer sides of the feet. Results can often be obtained in six weeks to six months.

Putting the feet in hot water for five minutes before exercise and for five minutes after exercise will prevent or remove soreness caused by the exercise. When the individual is elderly, greatly overweight, or unwilling to take exercise, arch supports, properly fitted, act as a crutch and give much relief.

LOCAL NEWS

At Yakima on Business—

B. J. Pinckney left Tuesday for Yakima, Wash., on a business trip which will keep him there three days. Mrs. Norah Lawrence is in charge of Mr. Pinckney's place of business during his absence.

Insurance Man Here—

Clayne Robinson of Boise, district manager for the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York, was in Nyssa and vicinity Monday and Tuesday going over the territory with Martin Olsen, local agent.

Trailer and Truck Collide—

No one was injured, but a trailer and beet truck were damaged when the truck collided with the trailer on the highway opposite the Henry Sherwood farm, one-half mile south west of Nyssa, Monday morning. The car to which the trailer loaded with chopped hay was coupled had just been driven onto the highway by Jess Loveland when Henry Sherwood drove his truck into the trailer's rear, the truck swerving to the side of the road and stopping when it collided with a telephone pole, cutting the pole in two. The truck is laid up for repairs at a local garage.

Muchly Bloused

The blouse that really blouses is big news for fall. The very full blouse is extremely becoming to some figures as it makes small hips look smaller. The model at the top is in blue shantung printed with a small figure in bordeaux red. It is worn with a bordeaux felt hat and a teal blue skirt. The very much bloused effect that makes the waist look ever so small is shown below in the picture. It is done in aquamarine foulard with a tiny dot and is worn over a skirt of dull purple crepe. The color combinations here mentioned may seem unusual but they are typical of the new color trends stressed throughout the newer fashions.

Style Notes

There is a big revival of ear-rings.

Jackets and coats are often bloused at the back.

Many black wool dresses have yokes and insets of lace.

It will be a season of intriguing furs and fur trimmings.

Higher necklines, long sleeves distinguish new fashions.

Gold jewelry, gold embroidery trims many black gowns.

The new tops of hats of handsome plaid wools are stunning.

New hair brings little combs and barettes into use.

Slim waistline demanded by fashion requires careful corseting.

Red Ants Sprint On Black Bolero

Schlaparelli has turned pagan in a striking way by making her mid-season showing a magnificent collection of "earthy" things. Red ants run down the front of black shantung boleros. Big brown and blue owls stare out from the buttonholes on wool jackets. Nymphs and naiads are printed on evening gowns. Strawberries turn into buttons or sprout from the peak of a green straw hat. Wheat stalks replace flowers. Gleaming green grasshoppers perch on gold-leaved bracelets. And red acorns sprout on silver lame.

Washable Velvets For Fall Fabrics

Plaid brocades, washable velvets and waterproof tweeds are among the fall fantasies which will go into the making of madame's winter wardrobe, also chenille-embroidered tulle, printed cotton velvets and rainproof duvety.

Material experts have really given the world everything they could think of in the way of novelty loom-work and dyeing.

Lumber Jacks!

Here is a gay frock for a gay evening. The clannish plaid is a spun rayon fabric and it demonstrates the modishness of plaid for evening wear. Never such a "plaid season" as this. There is not a nook or crook in all fashiondom that has escaped the present plaid invasion, which, needless to say, is adding a note of tremendous interest to new fashions. However as intriguing as the dress here pictured is, even more so is the black velvet lumber-jacket evening wrap which milady holds in her hand. The lumber jacket is one of the newest evening frivolities recording this season.
