PAROLE BOARD O. K.'S CAMPS

Members of the state parole board who visited the parolee camp in the Elliott state forest in western Douglas county are most enthusiastic over the work being accomplished in the rehabilitation of former convicts by this program. Seventeen parolees are now being employed in the camp. These men, in addition to receiving food and lodging are paid $50 a month, the money providing a nest egg on which the men are able to make a new start in life. Men assigned to the camp are carefully selected by officials at the state prison. Their stay in the camp averages about four months.

POLITICAL JOBS ARE ALWAYS "SOFT"

This is the shortest week in the year for state officials and employees. What with election day and Armistice day and their regular Saturday afternoon half-holiday they will be required to put in three and one-half days at their desks this week. Thanksgiving day, November 24, will provide another day for rest and recreation for those on the public payroll.

PRISON GIVE FLORAL TRIBUTE TO WARDEN

One thousand hard boiled criminals, prisoners in the Oregon penitentiary contributed their mites toward a fund of $250 for the purchase of floral tributes to the memory of their former warden, James W. Lewis, Lewis, regarded as a stern disciplinarian, was held in high regard by the men under his charge. One of their number, a life-terminer declaring him to be the best friend the prisoners had.

NATIONAL GUARD INCREASED

The strength of the Oregon national guard has been increased by 331 officers and men during the past two years, Major General George A. White, reported this week to Governor Martin. This increase brings the strength of the Oregon guard up to a total of 3603 officers and men, largest in the history of the state, General White said. Guard units are located in 33 cities scattered through 22 counties of the state.

OREGON TURNS TABLE ON CALIFORNIA

When M. J. B. Peterman of Santa Monica, California, discovered that a tract of land in Tillamook county which she recently purchased from the state land board was located in an isolated section far removed from the ocean she demanded her money back. The tract she was shown and which she thought she was buying, she told the board, bordered directly on the ocean with a splendid view of the rolling waves. The board agreed that under the circumstances Mrs. Peterman was entitled to a refund.

A MILLION AND A HALF FOR OREGON ROADS

One of the biggest "lettings" of road contracts in several years has been scheduled by the state highway commission for its meeting in Portland on November 17 and 18. Bids for 24 road and bridge jobs aggregating approximately $1,500,000 will be opened at the two day session. Twelve of the jobs are WPA projects.

MARTIN TO INSPECT ROADS

Governor Martin will accompany the state highway commission on a tour of roads through central and eastern Oregon next week. Leaving Salem Sunday noon the party will spend the night in Bend. The next day the officials will go to Burns by way of Lakeview and the Fremont highway on Tuesday the party will go to LaGrande by way of Ontario and Baker. At both Burns and LaGrande a banquet has been arranged for the entertainment of the official party.
