NEW SUPERINTENDENT ASSUMES OFFICE

Dr. H. G. Miller who became superintendent of Fairview Home, the state institution for feeble minded persons, last week, was for four years a member of the medical staff at the state hospital for the insane.

A MATTER OF ECONOMY

Why does Oregon use yellow paint instead of white in marking its highways? Because the pigment in the yellow paint outlasts white, is the answer supplied by R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer. Center striping of Oregon's highways is now done with a machine at a cost of $20 a mile as compared to $70 a mile a few years ago when the stripe was painted on by hand.

HOOD RIVER MAN ON ADVISORY BOARD

E. G. Ziegler of Hood River has been named by Governor Sprague as a member of the advisory board for the state employment service. Most of the board members are Portland residents. Ziegler will represent canning and packing interests.

NEW MILK INSPECTOR

Frank Nixon, formerly of Sheridan, has been designated as milk and cream supervisor in Marion and Clackamas counties, it has been announced by J. D. Mickle, director of the state department of agriculture. Ralph Schwab of Mt. Angel, has been appointed as the department's assistant district representative in Marion county.

RULING GIVEN ON PAROLE LAW

Attorney General Van Winkle has advised Governor Sprague that in his opinion the new parole law enacted by the last legislature does not apply to prisoners committed prior to the effective date of the act, June 14. In anticipation of such a ruling the governor had already instructed the parole board to make a study of all prison cases deserving of leniency with the understanding that he will commute sentences regarded by the board as unduly severe in the light of the recently authorized parole reform.

Completely Electrified Farm at New York World's Fair

THE ELECTRIFIED FARM OF THE ELECTRIC UTILITY INDUSTRY NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR
AN OPERATING FARM ONE ACRE IN SIZE FEATURING MORE THAN 100 PRACTICAL APPLICATIONS OF ELECTRICITY

VISITORS to the Electrified Farm of the electric utility industry at the New York World's Fair will see a practical working farm with a farm house and buildings, completely equipped, cattle, horses, chickens, every last thing one would expect to find on a farm—all on less than one acre. More than one hundred practical applications of electricity will be shown, including some new equipment not yet on the market.

Cattle from famous herds are being supplied by the breeder associations—Guernseys, Jerseys, Holsteins and Ayrshires.

The farm will be seen under actual working conditions, with cooking and their kitchen work in the all-electric kitchen; milking and processing of milk in the milking parlor and dairy room; incubating and hatching of chicks, candling and storage of eggs, preparation of broilers for market, in the poultry house and brooder house; cleaning, packing and storage of fruits in the community packing house; the growing of plants in the greenhouse and hotbeds, etc.

Quick freezing is an important recent development that has tremendous future possibilities for the farmer. Among the equipment shown for the first time at the Electrified Farm are electric quick-freezing cabinets which may take the place of present locker storage, because they make it possible to freeze on the farm and hold for long periods fruits, vegetables, meats and poultry. These cabinets have about 30 cu. ft. of freezing and storage space, the approximate space necessary for an average farm, and can be kept either in the basement of the house or wherever else they might be handy.

Many of the uses of electricity are well known to the nearly 1,500,000 farms receiving electric service. On this farm all of the common uses for this type of farm and many of the new, tested and proved practices that are within the means of the average farmer, are assembled in a complete working unit.

The Electrified Farm shows how electric city can help to make farm life more comfortable for the farmer and his family, and how it can increase farm profits.
