A DARK HORSE GETS THE NOD

SALEM—Crossing up all the political prognosticators the state parole board this week selected as the new parole director a man whose name had never been mentioned in connection with the numerous speculations for this position. That fact, however, does not necessarily detract from the qualifications of Fred Finsley, 33-year-old The Dalles attorney, whom the board has selected to administer the new parole organization which became effective this week.

A graduate of the University of Oregon where he studied sociology as well as law, Finsley was regarded by the board as the man best suited for the job out of the 42 who applied for the appointment. Selection of the remainder of the parole staff, including an assistant director, a psychiatrist and four field deputies was to await a conference with the new director.

"PRESSURE" SOMETIMES HAS EFFECT

It's been a case of "on again, off again" with the medical chiefs of the State Industrial Accident Commission this past month. First the commission announced the "resignation" of Dr. Joseph F. Wood, Democratic hold-over from the Martin administration. A few days later it announced the appointment of Dr. Louis P. Gambee to succeed Wood. Dr. Gambee is also a Democrat, but politics had nothing to do with either the resignation or the appointment, according to the commission which was interested only in efficient administration, or so they explained in a statement shortly after Gambee was elevated to the post of chief medical examiner. Others, apparently had different notions about the fitness of things political and otherwise. At least they made it so hot for the commission that last week Dr. Gambee also "resigned" and now Dr. Eugene W. Rocky, a rock ribbed Republican, is on the job assisted by Dr. John P. Trommald, another Republican.

FLAG WEEK AND NO FLAG POLE

Oregon's new $2,500,000 capitol has no flag pole. This lack which has occasioned much comment by others since the completion of the building a year ago was not discovered by Governor Sprague until last week after he had issued a proclamation urging that the American flag be displayed on all public buildings during Flag week, which ended Wednesday. Not only is there no provision for displaying the flag from the new capitol but no funds are available for remedying this oversight unless the state emergency board can be convinced that the situation constitutes an emergency and entitled to immediate consideration. The governor told the board of control that his office was holding a fund of $294 contributed by various citizens following the capitol fire of 1935 which was available for beautification of the new building but this amount is entirely inadequate to provide a flag pole in keeping with the dignity of the state house.

NATIONAL GUARD ENCAMPMENT STARTS

National guard headquarters were transferred from Salem to Camp Clatsop Tuesday morning where they will be maintained for the duration of the annual maneuvers. Both Major General George A. White and Brigadier General Thos. E. Rilea, as well as all members of the state staff will be at camp for the entire 15 day period.

Heat Relief in Farm Kitchen Provided by Electric Roaster

No wonder he smiles in anticipation. Just look at that roaster dinner!

By IRA MILLER
Rural Electrification Bureau

THE electric range, with its almost unlimited capacity, is the ideal solution to the "hot kitchen" problem. And it is slowly but surely coming into general use on the thousands of electrified farms of this country. At the moment, however, coal, wood and, to a lesser extent, kerosene stoves still are the rule in the majority of farm kitchens. And, as any farm wife will agree, nothing on this earth can be so hot as such stoves on a hot day.

Within the past few years, an appliance—the electric roaster—has made its appearance which, as an adjunct to the old-style range, offers an ideal means of heat relief to those farm wives who have high-line service in their homes. Although the electric roaster will do perfectly every job that comes within its size, it must not be assumed that it will entirely replace the range. But, by doing the heavy baking and cooking with the regular stove early in the morning of a hot day, and with a little careful planning, it is possible to complete the day's cooking, in comfort, with the roaster.
