Sponsors of WPA projects under the new law must, after August, pay 25 percent of the cost. From February this year Oregon's local contribution to the projects has been 23.2 percent; Washington's 24.4 percent, so the new requirement will not be much of an added burden. But from the beginning of WPA to last December the average local contribution in Oregon was 18.9 percent; Washington's 16.5. All told, as of December 1, 1938 (reported by the federal treasury), Oregon received federal WPA funds amounting to $36,363,621; Washington, $77,044,955. It averages about $36 for every man, woman and child in Oregon.

A Short Lesson On Monetary Matters

Here is what the row over the devaluation of the dollar means to the Pacific northwest wheat farmers: Before 1933 the farmer received 2580 grains of gold for 100 bushels of wheat; today under full devaluation (the president was authorized to reduce the dollar content 50 percent) the farmer for 100 bushels receives 1290 grains of gold. The fight is whether the president or congress shall say how many grains of gold the farmer shall receive for his golden grain.

It's Expensive at $10,000 a Year

A filibuster is merely a device to delay a vote on a measure which a number of members do not want to come to a vote. Technique in the senate is talk to kill time. This is impossible in the house where a speech in limited, frequently to 10 minutes, therefore a different method is used to attain the same result: those seeking delay demand a recall, which requires more than an hour. Then after a few minutes a quorum call, then another roll call and these tactics are as effective as long-winded speeches in the senate. Both methods are now being used.

Odds And Ends

Greatest development the federal government has ever undertaken in Oregon is the Willamette Valley project, which will start immediately transforming the valley on a basis of flood control. Efforts will be made at the next congressional session to initiate broad heavy construction national defense highways, one running from Kelso, Wash. to Medford, Ore., another along the Old Oregon Trail. Present highways are too crooked, narrow and light to serve mobile artillery and brigades of troops. Third term boosters assert Mr. Roosevelt now has 280 delegates in the nominating convention next year which convention will consist of more than 1000 delegates.
