SALEM—The experience of the city of Cascade Locks in its sale of bonds with which to finance construction of electric transmission lines is regarded by Governor Sprague as complete vindication of his stand before the last legislature in insisting upon competitive bidding for PUD bonds.

Several months ago Cascade Locks negotiated a private sale of a $79,000 block of 4½ per cent bonds at a bid of 95. The supreme court, however, upset the deal in a recent opinion which held that the bond issue must be advertised and thrown open to competition.

While the Cascade Locks bond issue was not subject to the new PUD law the same principle applies according to Governor Sprague.

Grange leaders and representatives of the Bonneville administration contended vigorously for private sale of PUD bonds on the ground that such a procedure would make for more advantageous sale of PUD securities.

Commenting on the Cascade Locks sale the governor pointed out that the city not only got a better bid for its bonds through competition but also saved any brokers' commission that would have been necessary under a private sale.

THE DEPOT WILL STAY

Discovery of a deed issued in 1870 has saved the old depot at Gervais. Under terms of the deed the Southern Pacific railroad in return for right-of-way and several blocks of ground in the city of Gervais agreed to maintain a depot there "permanently." The company this week notified the Public Utilities commissioner that it had withdrawn its application for permission to abandon the agency at that point and to close the depot.
