Ye Snooper's Column

Things About Nyssa's Shops

We did on Monday attend the demonstration and opening of the new cold storage locker plant just completed by "Doc" Marshall on the Hiway, north. And do say that it is the very latest in all that is new and scientific in this matter of keeping foods fresh over long periods.

We liked the looks of the berries as red as the moment they were picked but frozen like a stone when we saw them and promised to stay that way indefinitely. Should be a great boon to the farm home-maker. Just think of packing the fruits away in neat cartons and then stacking them high in the storage box against winters need.

No more fooling with jars and caps and rubbers. Except for the jams and jellies of course. For as yet the inventor has not come along who can turn a box of berries into thick red jam without due process of cooking. But with all these other aids that too may come.

But for all other food keeping fresh purposes these boxes are just about the bugs-eye-brow of perfection.

And this past week we did chat with a friend much interested in the development of these new lands who has been actively associated with most of the major reclamation projects of the west and he did leave us much food for thought. Chief of which was the need for ample swimming facilities in this land of irrigation ditches.

Perhaps every mother on the land realizes this but it at a loss to know how to go about it.

Even the tiny open ditch running through the garden plot is a constant menace to the toddler and as they grow older the swift flowing canals will sooner or later claim one or more of them—if they are long used for swimming holes.

And what is to happen then. Shall the water be turned out just when the thirsty crops need it most while a grief stricken family and their friends search frantically for a missing body, the life in it gone. Suppose the syphon were to have to be drained. Those life giving waters might be turned back for three weeks while millions of dollars in crops burned to a crisp and a summers harvest was lost and hundred of farmers face financial run. Only to find that for which they searched was not there. In such times sane reasoning oft gives way to emotional stress and a mass hysteria, causing unwisely procedures from which irrevocable damage is done.

Of course the community swimming pools would not entirely eliminate this danger for an open ditch where people cross or ride beside is at any time a danger place but they will reduce it.

And there are many ways of obtaining public help in building pools enough for every community, as has been already proven by the Morgan Park Garden club. If each woman's club would make this their major project, to form a park association with definite plans and aims and then by hook or crook, fair means or foul get a wee bit of land, just to start and then present these plans and definite specification to those in authority of such works, they would be surprised how quickly and easily would come co-operation. Wee parks tucked away in the curve of a convenient road, with its swimming pool, an out side fireplace for cooking, and benches placed in the shade of trees planted. And one at least for every community. 'Tis a legacy to leave for the next generation and for many more to come, and as priceless as the love that would go in the building of them. And, 'tis not a dreamers fantasy, but can easily become a reality.

And how eagerly they would be welcomed by the children is evidenced by the overwhelming response this week to the Red Cross swim week program when just from Nyssa alone over 50 boys and girls were present bright and early on Monday morning for the bus which took them to Ontario for swimming instruction and a morning's dunking.

And we did think on Monday at the Nyssa movie house that one would go far and see a lot'a pitchers before they would see again such a fine lot of ace actors in any one given picture.

The man Paul Lucas in the days of our youth was our hearts secret sorrow, so soft and sweet seemed the words he whispered in the leading maiden's ear, and yet he was even the he-man at heart. But then one day we didst learn that the beautiful brown hair on that noble pate could be put on and taken off at will so didst decide the one we had already chosen was still the better man. But Paul Lucas can act as can all the players in every show at this home town theatre where there is at every a good show for every one at prices that doest allow the harrassed money maker to take his entire flock without fear of meeting the sheriff on the way out.

And soon the autumn winds will be with us when the fire hazards will be greatly increased, what with the tinder like wild grasses and stacked hay and grains. Wise indeed will be the householder and farmer who has given heed to his insurance needs and availed himself of real insurance at any one of Nyssa insurance brokers. There be the Grahams at the Nyssa Realty, and Frank Morgan at his office also on Main street and Bernard Eastman who holds forth on Main twixt Third and Fourth.

And we didst this past week talk with our good friend Bill Feinen, of the chick houses and he didst tell us how his choosy hens didst lay more readily when the laying house had been insulated against the summer sun. And he didst test the temperatures therein with a trusty thermometer and didst find that insulation lowered the temperature an even ten degrees and so the biddies didst busy themselves in the cooler place and at eve time he was rewarded with an extra number of eggs.

So we didst think that if a chick could so improve her output with a properly insulated home what more couldst we humans do.

And at Emil Stunz' lumber yard on the Hiway south of the Y he doest carry a fine line of all manner of insulation wares that be worthy of investigation. For be not deceived. Even tho the summers sun may not shine again with such intensity this year there are more summers to come and in between there is the winter time when insulation will be just as great a boon for stock and fowl and human beings. Proper insulation doest of a surety save on fuel bills.

And speaking of chicks that Leatherneck Archie Howell and his lady didst one day last week present us with a box of special Layena eggs which they didst claim to be tops in fine flavored. And in truth we didst believe them when we had given them a trial. Tender was the texture and full of fine flavor. And Arch didst say that these lady chicks had since their incubator day been fed on these fine Purina chick chows that the Al Thompson feed store doest sell.

But one cannot not live on eggs alone, much more than they can on love, but if they, the eggs of course are served with a bit of juicy full flavored ham such as they do carry at the Nyssa Packing and some fluffy crust crispy biscuits that anyone can make from that special flour that Barney Wilson doest traffic in and some of that fresh butter they carry at that emporium and a bit of their canned jam, then indeed doest one have a feast that will far surpass any four-and-twenty-black-bird-pie affair that rumor has wast set before a king.

Sure one will need a bit of coffee too with thick cream to give it that fine flavor. But coffee to can be purchased fresh at that Wilson mart and the cream is always on hand at the Gate City dairy.

Shop in Nyssa with Journal advertisers and ye will not waste thy time and thy gas going farther.
