OUR CHILDREN'S ACTIVITY PROGRAM

WITH the inauguration this week of the Children's Activity Program at our grade school, we believe that congratulations are in order to Principal Leo Hollenberg for working the idea up and to the school board members for their sanction of it.

The program should have far-reaching effects in affording a place for our children and young people to meet and to further their education or continue any hobby that they may have. Conducting the program in the school building was a wise choice, it seems to us, for in it the participants of the program will have access to everything that will be needed for the furtherance of the purpose of the program.

But back of this program is a thought that we may overlook—the devotion of our teachers to the children and young people—for none of the teacher that will be present to help with the program will be paid for their time. What a grand thing it is to know that the future of our generations to come are in the hands of such farsighted and devoted people—CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR EDUCATORS!

THE STAGE CURTAIN RACKET

IN THIS editorial we are daring to put into writing some thoughts held more or less secretly by 95 per cent of Vale business men. We refer to the "stage curtain racket"—and we are 100 per cent against it.

For the past several years, dealers in stage curtains have been preying on community clubs in the vicinity of Vale. Club leaders are told that their stage is practically useless without a curtain and the cost of the curtain is placed high—sometimes as high as several hundred dollars. They are further told that financing a new curtain is easy—simply circulate a subscription list among Vale business men. A technique of approach to the business men is outlined and in some instances the salesmen themselves carry the list around the town. The inference is plain. Subscribe from $4 to $10—or else.

For ourselves, we are going on record here and now that we will subscribe to no more such curtains, and we are going to urge other Vale business men to adopt the same course. If community clubs want to be extravagant and spend several hundred dollars for a curtain, we think they should pay for their own.

We have yet to see a curtain decorated with so-called "ads" that had any artistic merit whatever. Most of them are hideous. If clubs desiring curtains will come down to earth and purchase some heavy drapery material, they can make their own and have some really attractive curtains for a fraction of the cost of the other style. We should be glad to contribute a couple of dollars for curtains of this kind and price and we feel other Vale business men would do the same.

Curtains like this would serve the purpose and would also be within the pocket book range of the business men and their friends in the countryside. Everyone would be satisfied. The only folks disappointed would be the curtain manufacturers and their salesmen who have been working the other kind of a racket so successfully in the community for the past several years.—Malheur Enterprise.

METHODIST COMMUNITY CHURCH

The purpose of Christianity is to provide personal eternal salvation unto mankind. Salvation is a state of joy and peace that comes to those who devote their lives to God. Christianity does not wait until a man dies for this "reward" to be given. It abides now in those in whom it is genuine. But where there is oppression and injustice such as exists in the world today, it becomes a Christian responsibility to become God's servants in the relieving of these evils. In the sermon this Sunday morning some of the implications of this general theme will be considered.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING FOREMOST

DESPITE the appearance of other advertising media, the newspaper remains the most productive channel whereby industry can reach the buying public—and industry is fully aware of that fact.

A recent survey well illustrates the sustained popularity of newspapers among advertisers. The survey was made by four national associations serving chain stores, and covered 138 representative systems operating more than 33,000 stores, coast-to-coast, and having annual sales well in excess of $3,000,000,000.

During the typical year covered by the survey, these companies spent more than $55,000,000 for advertising, an average of $1,754 per store. Almost 58 per cent of the money was spent with newspapers. A little less than 10 per cent was spent on handbills and similar printed matter, much of which was produced in local newspaper plants. Only 4.30 per cent was spent for radio, with the balance made up for expenditures on miscellaneous media.

Breaking the figures down, it was found that drug chains spent $2.24 per cent of their advertising dollar with newspapers, grocery chains spent $6.53 per cent and general merchandise and variety chains spent 51.35 per cent.

That is a testimonial to the character of the American press. No institution holds a higher place in the esteem of the American people. This is particularly true of the newspapers serving the smaller towns of the country, which are read from "cover to cover" by their subscribers—news, locals, advertisements and all.—Pullman Herald.

CHAMBERS HEAR
SEED EXPERT

At the regular bi-monthly meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Southwestern Idaho and Eastern Oregon, C. G. Bowden, western sales manager of Northrup King and company, related to that body the history of the advance of the small seed crops in the United States. Red clover seed, according to Bowden, held the best promise for the small seed grower, followed by strawberry clover. Bowden also told the group that the United States was now almost self-sufficient as far as raising small seeds as compared to the period prior and just after the last World war, when this country was dependent to a large extent upon seed from European countries.

Entertainment was furnished by the Parma high school band. The address of welcome was given by the president of the Parma Chamber of Commerce, C. A. Olson, and the response by S. D. Biggs, president of the Associated Chambers. The introduction of the principal speaker was given by Ned Harlan, secretary of the Boise Chamber of Commerce.
