

Ye Snooper's Column

Things About Nyssa's Shops

And so they will build a memorial to Borah? As if the greatest possible memorial has not been made by the man himself in his own life time.

Guam, that tiny verdant speck all but hidden in the folds of the old Pacific's blue bosom, whose coral reefs rest on the cone of an extinct volcano and spread out from its summit 'neath deep waters like an overgrown mushroom, is surely coming in for its share of notariety and press comment.

A picture island it is where tall Tenyo slopes greenly to the white sands of curving lagoons, where no snake nor poisonous insect grows and only the iguana slipping through the budoocks reminds one of a prehistoric mammal existence.

And it was a grand Queen Liz that Bette Davis didst portray at the Nyssa cinema this week. Essex, poor dear, would love the wrong gal. But men are like that and if they keep their heads on their shoulders in this advanced day of civilization oft do find themselves in the rear end of the family doghouse.

This past week there didst come to hand a booklet put out by the fire underwriters on how to protect one's homestead from the loss by fire. So many little things one does each day that are wrong, we were astounded. But chief among them was this almost universal practice of enticing the flittrive flame with a dose of kerosene.

And when the family jalopy finally silted through the last mud hole on Saturday to land thee and thy clan on Nyssa's drippy pavements, we do hope that thou were among the throngs to take advantage of Mrs. Atkeson's 2-4-1 sale, a house dress and a snappy new street or dress frock for the price of the latter. Surely 'twas a sale scarce equalled in these parts for many a day.

And we didst spy on her rack two new wine-colored coats. Styled in the new in-at-the-waist effect and at a price so low to be scarcely believable. A fine topping they will make for any spring costume and a snug covering for another winter.

And now with the mud thicker than gumbo it's a bad time to have to change a tire, given out from much use. And there is no need now that a new one canst be got at the Gambles store on Main near Third at so low a cost and with the added inducement of a trade-in allowance for the poor down to the tread thing that hasst been so long used.

And next to having a new outfit there ist nothing that so sets up a woman or a man's for that matter, self-esteem and overcomes the old inferiority complex as a suit or frock fresh cleaned and renewed at one of Nyssa's good cleaning shops.

The Main's or the Nyssa Tailor Shop. Both are tops when it comes to putting the new back in long-suffering garments. Rugs and hats tops. To these simple peoples they are as American as the forty-niner who delved for gold in bonanza hills of the far west. And to leave them now helpless to a foreign power whose methods of governing are slavery for the governed, would be as heartless as turning a southern bred stall raised racing horse loose on a northern winter range to shift for itself.

Except for their bit of copra produced they have little of commercial value growing to tempt exploitation from big capital—no room there for sugar cane, no forests of hard wood, no undiscovered minerals, but to our way of thinking, if these United States are to maintain a commercial foothold in the Orient and wish to see the ships of the nation in far eastern ports of trade, then we must protect our stepping stones across the Pacific including this microscopical spot of earth in a great ocean and its broadcasting station, its air base and its American people.

'Twas a fine bit of a shoe sale that the Golden Rule store put on last Saturday and it was primarily to make way for new spring stock soon to arrive and needing place on the shelves. But it is not alone in shoes that one picks up a neat bargain at that emporium, but all over the store merchandise that is new and in perfect condition can be purchased at a fine saving.

Heavy has hung the fog over the valley since the thaw and last rain and to our way of thinking fog in spring and autumn is as useless as flies in summer. A bedevilment of Satan made to confound man, so Satan made to confound man, so Satan made to confound man, so Satan made to confound man, so Satan made to confound man.

The Main's or the Nyssa Tailor Shop. Both are tops when it comes to putting the new back in long-suffering garments. Rugs and hats and fine blankets too do be given a new lease on life at these establishments.

Now all do know that the Mill on the Floss was bogged down in England but some may not know that here in Nyssa we do have a Mill on the Snake. Well if not right on its banks, at least close by. And we speak not of the sugar factory but of the Nyssa Flour Mill on South First street, long an established institution in these parts where all manner of grain cleaning and grinding is done according to high standards and where they do make a fine flour and cereals as well. 'Tis the Nyssa Flour Mill where Warren and Barclay sell their men.

Now some folks there be who eat no meat such as the Hindus in India, some say. But we have often thought that diet habit in the beginning is oft controlled by climatic and sanitary conditions and of course the abundance or lack of foodstuffs as well as the religious motives so often ascribed to the cause. Surely in India where the humidity and heat will spoil flesh for human consumption ere it can be prepared. But except in isolated cases, we of this country do like our meat. Good meat, well cured, and handled according to government approved methods and that is just what we gourmands get here in Nyssa when we buy our fish, fish and fowl at the Nyssa Packing company store.

Perhaps in no other business is consistent and constant accuracy so important than at a drug store where the merest slip may be the difference 'twixt life and death. Then why trifle with money-saving cut-rate stores that in order to sell cheap must cut some place. Either in their quality of product or in the employee who handles the drugs. But here in Nyssa no one needs to accept anything but the best and at fair prices too when they depend upon the Owyhee Drug store to fill their medical needs. 'Tis a fine place to indulge in a hot or cold soft drink or fill up on a man-sized sandwich such as they do make with such culinary skill.

But if it is food one wants, the making of a square meal to be cooked at home, the hearty snack dear to the male appetite or something dainty in innard filling for the ladies, then at Barney Wilson's canst the shopper find just the thing to meet every need. And hast indulged in some of that sweet savored and tender celery they do market these days. Easy it is to get the vitamins, salts and what nots the docs do tell us to eat the celery way.

Shop in Nyssa with Journal advertisers and ye will not waste thy time and thy gas going farther.
