Voted by those attending as one of the most outstanding programs of the year, was the one given at the last meeting of the Civic Club held Wednesday afternoon at the Parish hall.

Mrs. Carl H. Good, program chairman, was fortunate in securing Mrs. Gerald Whitney of Homedale as principal speaker of the afternoon.

Mrs. Whitney held her audience spellbound for over an hour with her vivid descriptions of northern Europe, as she saw it on a recent trip. Mrs. Whitney attended the Christian Youth Conference at Amsterdam in the early autumn and then toured the northern European countries shortly before the outbreak of the war, and the told of conditions, places and people as seen through a woman's eyes.

Following the talk Jean Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Taylor, played a piano number.

Mrs. Boersma then asked Mrs. J. J. Sarazin, as one of the first club members, to install the new officers, who had been elected at the business meeting preceding the program.

At the business meeting it was also decided to join with the Morgan Park Garden club in holding a spring garden show and a committee composed of Mrs. J. J. Sarazin, chairman, Mrs. Ernest McClure, and Mrs. E. D. Norcott, was appointed to meet with a Garden Club.

COW HOLLOW

By The Happy Farmer

Everyone in Cow Hollow is going in a high lode now.

Jim Trummel was the first one to get any grain seeded. He drilled and corrugated his wheat last week and has another field all plowed.

Russell Howell drilled wheat on Monday. Doc Ruffington had ten acres ready to start drilling Tuesday.

Elza Niccum had a field all worked up and flooded down ready to seed last week. Clarence Niccum had twenty acres all disked up and harrowed by Tuesday night. It is now land and he has to do a little freemoving on it before he floods it.

Clay Sage has hauled enough manure with his new spreader to cover about ten acres of land, raked and burned all the old weeds and what brush that was left on his new land that he had not gotten in and Monday morning he started the disk putting in the new land.

Everybody is "hitting the ball" from early until late.

Chuck Shure has the pump in his new well now so now instead of spending a half day every few days hauling water he lets the Idaho Power spend a few minutes every day pumping it.

Elza Niccum is surely having his stock water troubles. He has the biggest stock water pond in the Hollow and it went dry. He has the largest cistern in the Hollow and it went dry. He dug a hole in an old canal seep and found plenty of water. He was feeling good. He said, "I believe this will hold out until the water comes on in the ditch."

Now it has gone dry and Elza is desperately digging hole here and there. He says, "All that water I soaked into this ground last summer can't be all gone by now." He thinks that it couldn't have gone down through the hardpan. He declares "surely there is an underground stream around here somewhere if only I can find it." He sure don't want to haul water for all that stock.

Sunday afternoon a man with his coat under his arm and his hat in his hand came a stepping it off across the Hollow over to the Happy Farmer's house. When he arrived, he pants, "Will you take me to Pete Tensen's farm? We have a band of ewes and lambs up here by the syphon and they haven't had water since Friday morning and they are just going crazy. We can't handle them any longer." We tried to explain the old "condensate" was complaining at every joint and wasn't safe to start any place, but we might make it. He said that he had stopped at four farm houses straight to be came down the road. Two of them the car was gone. The third never had any gas and the fourth never even had any car and he just had to get to the ranch.

We made it without any mishap to the ranch. It was Pete's boy, C. M. Tensen, that owned the sheep. C. M. met us at the gate and the fellow jumped out of the truck and yells, "Give me the truck and those water troughs quick and pay this fellow what you owe him! The sheep haven't had any water since we left and we just can't hold them any longer." He explained that the place where they were supposed to water at had dried up and they had driven them to the Cow Hollow syphon. The water there had to be pumped by hand and there were no troughs there and the sheep just had to be watered yet that day.

Soon the water troughs were on their way and C. M. was very generous in paying "this fellow" what he owed him so the sheep and lamb got a drink of water and "this fellow" kiddies will get still more candy. So everybody is happy again.

LOWER BEND

Elton Francis of Boise visited at the parental Francis home last week. He took his mother home for a visit.

The 7th and 8th grades of the Big Bend school gave a surprise birthday party for Albert Abbi on his 12th birthday Friday evening at the Russell home. Refreshments were carried out in St. Patrick's idea. Mrs. Hyatt and daughters were Caldwell shoppers Saturday.

The Marsh family of Homedale have purchased the Ed Abbi place and will move here soon.

The pie social and program given by Big Bend P. T. A. Wednesday evening was well attended and the program was ably presented and much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Bayer visited at the Ed Abbi home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Abbi and family and Mrs. Harry Russell visited Mr. Russell at the veterans hospital in Boise Saturday and found him improving.

OREGON

"Electric Cooking has meant a lot to me, too."

Many a grandmother can testify to the advantages of electric cookery — for, largely because of low electric rates, it was accepted in the Snake River Valley before it was popular elsewhere in the United States.

But—each year it's been made better, and more economical. Along with reductions in rates, have come improvements in operation. If you don't have one of the modern electric ranges, you can't realize the true meaning of MODERN electric cookery.

So—have a look the next time you're shopping. Study modern electric cookery through your own eyes, see what it can do for you — how it can make meal-planning easier, cooking more fun.
