COW HOLLOW By The Happy Farmer

Cow Hollow is going to lettuce more and more. Doc Raffington has in eight acres and is plowing more land for lettuce. Frank Parker is preparing land for lettuce. Chuck Shares has some in. E. E. Cloninger has twenty acres in and Paul Ransom is putting in twenty acres.

Haying is drawing to a close in Cow Hollow. Sam Sutes, Raymond Howell, Frank Parker and Chuck Shares have finished haying. By Tuesday night, George Gabriel, Clarence Niccum and Dale Limbunger had finished cutting and shocking their hay.

While stacking hay Tuesday at George Gabriel's Clarence Niccum got kicked by a horse. There were no bones broken but he is pretty badly bruised up. He'll be off work for a few days. He says, "This is the way I spend my vacation." He had started to snap the britchen strap on Dude Parker's horse without speaking first to the horse about it. Maybe he will learn to speak to a horse first.

Mr. Sessions is working at the sugar factory again.

Sam Cates' watermelons have began to ripen and he has world's of roasting ears now. He and Russel Howell will be about the only ones to have many melons this year.

Doc Raffington had visitors over the week end from Oklahoma. They were enroute to Seattle and stopped for a sort visit as they went through. They were very much impressed with the idea that they might come back in the spring to make a permanent location.

Jim Trummel started to dig his spuds and quit and gave them up because the quality was so poor that they weren't worth digging.

Jim is a c bear for hard luck. He says, "Guess I will have to get me a six titted cow too." There's some mighty fine looking corn in Cow Hollow this year and Cow Hollow has a record hog crop to feed it to.

THE OLIVER "SELF-BALANCED" MOWER and what it will do in your hay fields. Your weight, alone, takes the weight off the horses' necks

Make this mower balance test: Put a man on the seat of the Oliver Mower. Then lift the tongue. You'll do it without effort with one hand—then make the same test on any mower with forward mounted gears and see the difference. Your weight balances the Oliver Mower. Your weight is all that is needed to take the weight off the horses' necks.

And that means as much in comfort to you as it does to the horses. You ride in comfort and quiet on the smooth running, easy riding, light draft Oliver Mower. The 4-square frame holds the bar squarely to its work, makes the Oliver Mower free from tongue slap, and the gear mounting back of the solid one-piece axle produces the balance that takes the weight off the horses' necks. Together they keep your horses free from sore necks.

All gears are completely enclosed running in oil, and there is one less gear in the Oliver, still further reducing draft.

This mower is a standard 3" guard spacing machine. Come in and let us show you how well it meets the needs of this territory.
