You'll Seldom Find Such A Handy Rake SO STRONG

This is the Oliver Sulky Dump Rake. Its bridge-trussed frame prevents sagging and twisting and has a reputation for great strength and long service.

Note the convenient position of the levers and the foot pressure pedal. Teeth are lifted and hay dumped by a pair of strong rods operating from each wheel—with ends shaped into pawls to fit into the ratchets in the wheel hubs. The large number of ratchet teeth in each hub causes the rake to dump the instant that pressure is applied to the foot dump pedal. The teeth drop immediately, so there is no unraked strip next to the windrow.

The upper pedal acts as a foot rest, locks the rake down after dumping, and is used for bunching windrows. There are 3 different "down" positions of the teeth and 4 different "up" positions. You can handle heavy or light hay, under any and all conditions.
