A. L. LINDBECK
State Capitol News Bureau

SALEM—The election is over but the post mortem continues. About the only consolation the Republicans of Oregon can glean from the result of the presidential contest is to be found in the fact that Roosevelt's lead in this state was substantially reduced from that piled up for the new deal candidate in 1932 and again in 1936.

But the Roosevelt victory was not the only surprise administered the Republicans of the state. The strength displayed by A. L. Brown, democratic candidate for state treasurer, and Bruce Spaulding, democratic candidate for attorney general, has also given the majority party leaders something to worry about.

Defeat of some of the ballot measures, all nine of which were rejected, can be laid to the doubtful "no" vote, always an important factor in Oregon elections. With interest in the campaign centered almost entirely on the presidential contest, the ballot measures were almost lost sight of with the result that thousands of voters went into the polling booths uninformed and, being in doubt, voted "no."

Republicans will control both branches of the next state legislature with 28 members in the house to 22 democrats and 24 members of the senate to six Democrats.

Speculation as to the next president of the Oregon state senate was set at rest this week when Douglas McKay of Salem announced his withdrawal from the race in favor of Senator Dean Walker of Polk county whose election is thus assured. Walker's election to the senate presidency will leave vacant the important post of chairman of the powerful ways and means committee which he has held for the past several sessions. Among those most prominently mentioned to succeed Walker in this post is Ronald Jones of Marion county who has served on the committee for the past two sessions. It is said that McKay would prefer to remain as chairman of the senate committee on roads and highways.

On the other side of the legislative chamber, however, the battle for the speakership continues to wage between Robert Farrell, Jr., of Portland and William McAlister of Medford, with John Steelhammer of Salem standing by ready to jump into the breach if the contest between these two candidates should develop into deadlock.

A total of 372 prisoners have been released from the state penitentiary since the new parole board was created in June, 1939, according to a report submitted by the board to Governor Sprague. Of this number 310 were released on straight paroles and 62 were paroled after commutations and six received conditional pardons.

Out-of-school youths between the ages of 17 and 25 years are to be offered opportunities for training in vocational agriculture, trades and industries and certain phases of home making under the national degree program of the state board of vocational education the board decided at a meeting here this week.

Eight out of every ten "foreign" cars entering Oregon this year came from one of the ten western states, according to a report compiled by Secretary of State Snell, Washington, Idaho and California accounted for three-fourths of the state's tourist travel this year. The 120,445 out-of-state cars registered in Oregon this year represents a drop of 13 per cent in tourist travel as compared with the record for 1939.

COW HOLLOW

By The Happy Farmer

Was rather surprised the first of the week to wake up and find a blanket of snow on the ground. It won't be long now until the boys will be rounding up their sleds to go coasting.

Speaking of coasting the other day Elza Niccum went down to the old Owyhee ditch to get some willows to use on his shed. After cutting willows for a while he was getting dry. The ditch was running just a little but there was lots of water standing in it and it looked good.

It looked like a good place to get down the bank so he takes hold of a limb and put his foot on a rock.

Low! The rock rolled. He sat down on his sled.

When he got done coasting he was ten feet out and sitting in ten inches of water.

The freeze Monday and Tuesday took a lot of hard labor out of Cow Hollow.

Jim Trummel was about half done digging spuds—but thanks to the freeze he is done now. What is left is done for.

Chuck Share had a small patch he planted late for seed which was not dug yet. They are done for too.

Most all of the lettuce was already cut. It's all done for now.

Doc Raffington's lettuce was the latest. He would of had some yet. A car load of lettuce isn't of any value in the field this year so Doc isn't hurt much.

We are turning our attention to fuel in this kind of weather. There isn't a wood pile in Cow Hollow that would last very long in a snow storm.

Russell Howell and Chet Sage have been topping beets for some time. They drive back and forth morning and night.

Now that the hunting season is nearly over the pheasants have begun to appear again and you see large flocks of ducks go over.

Fred La Shause bought Chet Sage's corn field for two hundred dollars. There were eight acres. That isn't a whole lot for 8 acres, but yet we Hollowites would like to know that we could raise $25 per acre on we carefree days mostly because there was nothing to worry us. With the years have come responsibilities. Insurance is designed to ease the load of cares which come to those with property to protect. Let us help you to determine exactly what insurance protection you need.

our farms next year with no more expense than that.

The price of hogs holds pretty good and there is lots of hogs in the hollow. Far more hogs than there is feed for them. Thanks to the canal break the small grain crop was a fizzle this year and Chet's corn is the only grain to amount to anything that is for sale.

Dude Parker may have a little corn for sale but there is quite a list of them that will have to buy feed.

George Gabriel and Russell Howell will be the largest buyers now that Fred La Shause has already bought. Fred will still have to buy more.

See George Gabriel is out turning his clover he wanted to stack a month ago. It will have to rain pretty quick or he will get it stacked yet.

Dude Parkers' first cut of Sorghum came made 30 gallons of sorghum. He only cut four rows early. He had 4 rows more. It was late. It never came up until the water came after the bread. He cut it, but don't know if he got made up before the freeze.

Frank Parker is building a line fence between him and Cloninger. The Lieutenant is furnishing the material and Frank is doing the work.

Anything to get a fence as we all are anxious to get our fences in.
