

Ye Snooper's Column

Things About Nyssa's Shops

On Sunday did list to the L. D. S. Conference Broadcast and especially to the address of President Grant. While we have never seen the wonders of their tabernacle nor do we understand their faith and creed other than they worship God and believe in the power and prayer shall the words of their leader spoken from a heart filled with sincerity, love, and wisdom, thrilled us as few speakers ever have. Particularly his advice for brotherly love to all men in this war filled and hate maddened world was most comforting. We liked to the courage of the man who dared in so public a place to fix the blame and to voice his distaste for the present mad rush of all nations to shove the youth of the land, particularly the one to the cannons mouth or the point of a bayonet.

Just recently we read that the fighting forces of the Italians were yellow. That when they met the barbed points of the Greek bayonets they surrendered then and there. Well would not we do the same if the cause for which we fought was not our own freedom and the soil of battle our mother land?

And what about those Italian boys taken prisoners when the United States took over their ships. Courteous, friendly chaps their keepers report them to be, and like ourselves wait for the day when war shall end and men and women are again permitted to work out their own salvation as God intended.

We hear that Nyssa's envoys whom the Chamber of Commerce didst commission to journey to Portland and bring home some roads improvements program did quite nicely. We are to have more than we hoped for it seems. Too they did a bit of publicity for the Sugar factory and while visiting a public market in our states metropolis, found two fine displays of White Satin but alas and slacks they also ran up against a purchasing agent for a large restaurant who claimed to know not that Oregon possessed a sugar mill nor that sugar was made in Nyssa. To him sugar was sugar, but he promised to mend his sugar buying ways and keep the sugar money at home.

We watched the gravel trucks tear up and down north Third street this week. How fast they were going we cannot say but it seemed from the side of the road that sixty miles an hour would have been a fair estimate. Great fogs of dust followed them and billowed out both sides of the road causing many unkind remarks from harassed housewives with fresh washines still damp on the line and furniture in the homestead gray as an alkali flat. But the real danger was to little folk crossing the road way to say nothing of smelting poches, chickens, and pussies. Heedless these little ones are to danger and dash out from unexpected places without warning. Easily they could be obscured in the dust until it would be too late. Screaming brakes, a limp broken little body, a home bereaved by tragedy. Certainly this is too great a price for the little time saved. Surely the underpass will be finished on time without this too great a hurry.

Come Easter when all over this country happy folk will put on their new garments and his to church. There to join in songs of praise and thanksgiving for the risen Christ. If only men and women had and would follow his simple teachings. Not only will it be a day of church going and psalm singing but of feasting and visiting as well. Many for the first time this year will smack their lips over fried chicken, in the southland where seasons come earlier strawberry short cake will make its first appearance at the festive board and Easter eggs and chicks and bunnies will be the decoration of the day. Picnics too will be in order. New green vegetables are in at the Wilson grocery store, fresh and crisp and succulent to bring the tang of early spring to the feast, whatever else there may be.

The Nyssa Packing will do its share towards providing their bit to the joy of the day for there at that new meat counter of theirs are all manners of fine meats on display and for sale at most reasonable prices, be it a bit of sweet bread or a family roast with some left over for supper Butch will have it as he has had for many years back.

It is only lately that Easter lilies were in the purchasing power of the average family. They were something to grace the altar at church on Easter day, otherwise they were an extravagance to be enjoyed only by the very rich. Now it is different, growers produce them in sufficient quantities that every one may enjoy the white blossoms and to gain a better sense of the occasion for which they are grown.

And every year since Lucien Wray and Mrs. Lucien have lent their presence to our community they have had these Easter blossoms for sale at buying provoking prices at the Dime Store on Main twixt First and Second. Its the big wide store with the Red front and cannot be missed for its sidewalk bench of spring posies always on display this time of year.

But what would Easter be to a miss or her ma without a new bonnet. But no one in these parts need suffer such a disgrace for at Wilson's Dry Goods Store on Main near Second they do have a neat lot on sale in all shapes and sizes for the young and not so young lady.

These hats this year however will not aid and abet and ladies looks, however, if her locks beneath spring out every which way like the whiskers on a pussy cats face or lop fornically like the cocks tail in the rain. A trip to the beauty parlor will set everything at rights tho so that with a curl here and dip there the hat and the head will look as though they belong to each other. If it is a neat hair do and a lasting permanent that the lady needs for Easter day and when will not be wanting at least one for that happy time then pay a visit to the Owyhee Beauty Parlor, or Maries's and get the newest and most becoming of hair styling and long lasting permanents.

Hasn't seen the neat and colorful new prints on display at the Golden Rule. In cotton silks and rayons. The newest in fabrics and color arrangements and at such pleasing prices that all may have a new frock. Shop in Nyssa with Journal advertisers and ye will not waste thy time and thy gas going farther.
