The president established a war production board headed by Donald M. Nelson, former mail-order firm executive and more recently executive director of SPAB and priorities director. The president directed Mr. Nelson to "exercise general direction over the war procurement and production program," to supervise the OPM and issue production and procurement directives where necessary to all other government agencies. The president said Mr. Nelson's decisions shall be final. Vice President Wallace and other members of the SPAB, now abolished, were made members of the War Production Board.

In letters to OPM Directors Knudsen and Hillman and other production officials, Mr. Nelson said "we must enlarge all our previous activities... all our facilities... must produce 24 hours a day, 168 hours a week." OPM Director Hillman, speaking in Washington, said the nation's force of workers in war industries must be doubled or tripled, more women must be trained and brought into the labor force to take the place of men going into the armed services. He asked employers not to bar aliens in war industries except in plants turning out secret weapons.

Director Odom of the OPM Contract Distribution Division said a plan has been prepared to set aside one percent of all available materials to assist small manufacturers in keeping their plants going until he said the nation's entire production can be converted to war use, away in thousands of cities and towns facilities—all of those "hidden towns and villages"—must join in the total war effort. He asked all mayors to have every manufacturer in their cities register at the nearest OPM Contract Distribution Division field office and to "go after war contracts with every ounce of industry and energy they possess."

The War Front

The Navy Department reported the sinking of five enemy vessels in far eastern waters — three transports and two large cargo ships. The announcement brought to 25 the total of Japanese vessels reported definitely sunk by the navy and marine corps in the Pacific. The navy also announced two allied merchant vessels were attacked by Axis submarines off Long Island. Throughout the week Gen. MacArthur reported heavy land and air fighting in the Philippines but said American and Philippine troops were putting up effective resistance and U. S. losses were low.

Army

War Secretary Stimson announced the army will be increased from the present total of 1,700,000 men to 3,600,000 men this year. Combat air units and armored units will be doubled; 32 motorized divisions will be added, and at least 50 more military police units for guarding production facilities will be created. Instead of the originally scheduled 10,000, more than 90,000 privates will be selected to attend officer-training schools. All training centers and posts will be enlarged and five temporary tent camps will be set up. To make 2,000,000 more men eligible, the army will lower age limits for aviation cadets from 20 to 18 years, make married men eligible, and change educational qualifications by eliminating college requirements.

Selective Service Director Hershey said the army increase could be accomplished without calling up men with dependents. He said there are now 1,000,000 men in class 1-A but not yet called, and 900,000 more men can be obtained by reclassification of other men from those men who will register February 16. He said deferment cases would be re-examined but deferments will continue to be given where possible to avoid undue disruption of family life. He said married men with one or more children probably will not be called until an army of 7,000,000 to 8,000,000 has been built. He estimated 10,000,000 is the top number of men the U. S. could mobilize for service even with lowered physical standards.

Labor Disputes

The president abolished the national defense mediation board and established a national war labor board with NDMB Chairman Davis as chairman. Four commissioners will represent the public, four will represent employees and four, industry. The new board has wider authority than the old board and can arbitrate or mediate disputes as it sees fit except that it cannot disregard existing labor legislation. The maritime war emergency board established war bonuses for sailors on merchant ships.

Autos

The OPA announced auto rationing would begin February 2 in the same manner as tire rationing. Of the 202,000 cars in the industry quota for January, about 150,000 cars will be stored with dealers who promise not to sell without permission—probably not to be granted before January, 1943—and then only at OPA established prices.

OPA issued a schedule of prices for "retreadable" tire carcasses and "retreads" and forecast a ceiling over all used tires "in the very near future." Federal Loan Administrator Jones announced plans to increase synthetic rubber production capacity to 400,000 tons by pooling of resources and skills of the rubber and oil industries if priorities can be obtained on steel needed to erect plants. OPA Administrator Henderson said the rationing would probably not be affected because of increasing military needs for rubber.

Censorship

Censorship Director Price, after consultation with newspaper, magazine and periodical editors, announced a code of conduct which publications were asked to follow in handling information in order to prevent information of a military nature reaching the enemy. Prohibited, unless officially released, are most details of military, naval or industrial establishments, casualty lists, damages to war facilities, movements of troops and ships, weather reports except of certain types, and movements of the president or of official military or diplomatic missions.

Agriculture

Agriculture Secretary Wickard said goals have been revised to call for the greatest agricultural production in U. S. history, with particular emphasis on the production of oil-bearing crops such as peanuts and soybeans. The corn goal was stepped up by five million acres in order that there be feed supplies to continue expansion of meat, dairy and poultry production. Dry edible bean and dry pea production increases were called for. An additional five million bushels of rice was asked and provision made for an increase over 1941 of more than 18 million cases of canned fruits and vegetables.

Civilian Defense

The OCD announced 3,516,000 volunteers have enrolled in the various civilian defense services, including 1,423,775 assigned to training or duty in the protective services. The office also announced a victory garden program under which all families in any community can jointly till community gardens, use the produce themselves and give the surplus to schools and institutions.

Surgeon General Parran told the U. S. conference of mayors in Washington "the enemy has planned and in my opinion will use bacteriological warfare whenever possible." He

Conservation
The OPM Bureau of Industrial Conservation opened a program to mobilize the nation's 1,700,000 retail stores in a continuous drive to salvage materials—wastepaper, scrap metal, old rags, rubber—needed to produce weapons for the fighting forces. Signers will display window emblems signifying their part in the "Salvage for Victory" program. The shopping public was asked to help conserve tires, trucks, and paper by depending on delivery service. Consumers of natural gas in nine states, carrying home bundles instead of mostly in the middlewest were asked to cut consumption as much as possible.

NEWELL HEIGHTS

Due to the school bus and mail routes Newell Heights families have not been inconvenienced much by the deep snow. The traffic is very light anyway since most of the day sold has been chopped and trucked out. A few farmers are finding it necessary to purchase a little hay to finish during the winter and early spring. Jess Sugg has sold to several buyers.

Bad roads and tire saving lessened the attendance of parents at the "open house" in Adrian high school Thursday.

Cecil Smith was the main guest at a birthday dinner Wednesday when relatives gathered to help him celebrate. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin McGinnis, Mr. and Mrs. James McGinnis and children, Mrs. Grethen Hatch of Adrian, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Smith and family, Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and Leonard Smith besides his immediate family were guests.

Jess Sugg went to Boise Wednesday to enter the veterans' hospital for medical treatment.

Mr. Sugg has suffered from headaches for years and so far no doctor has been able to give him relief.

Betty Jean Toomb of Kingman Kolony was a week-end guest of Joyce Kurtz.

The Deffenbach men folks have taken over the chores at the Ted Rogers ranch and will move in as soon as Mrs. Rogers and Buddy leave for the coast.

Kenneth and Delores Goulet have been quite ill since returning from Yakima. Eddie Healy is also absent from school. A sore throat epidemic seems to have developed in the school.

The hot lunch commodities arrived from Portland. This year all schools have to pay the freight by truck from Portland. The hot lunch cook would appreciate a nice donation of dish towels.

Mrs. D. L. Anderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pagan, came here from Nyssa Wednesday and spent the week-end with the Anderson family. They left Monday for their home in Utah. Mr. Pagan has been employed in the sugar factory the past four months. A son, Merlin, and family will remain in Nyssa.

Bob Kurtz writes that he is about through with the first few weeks' routine and will begin learning to drive army trucks in Camp Roberts, located in Salinas valley on the Salinas river 205 miles south of San Francisco. His address now is battery 51-D-F. A. Tug. Bu. Camp Roberts.

SUGAR SHORTAGE IS IN PROSPECT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (Special)—Secretary of Agriculture Claude A. Wickard warned in an interview this week that "some belated tightening" will be necessary because of an impending shortage of sugar, fats and oils.

Speaking on Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's pan-American coffee radio program, Mr. Wickard declared that the sugar situation is "the most critical" of the threatened shortages. He stated that "plenty of health-giving food" will be provided, but he refused to promise that sugar would be the only food shortage in 1942.

Mrs. Roosevelt suggested that families make household adjustments to meet the food situation rather than hoard food. She said the practice of merchants forcing persons to buy 1¢ worth of food in order to purchase two pounds of sugar was good if it was directed against hoarding. One woman had complained to Mrs. Roosevelt that the practice was discrimination against poor people.
