STATE CAPITAL NEWS

A. L. LINDBECK

SALEM, OR.—The budget which Governor Sprague will present to the next legislature for its consideration will be a "streamlined war-time budget" he told news men this week. That is, he explained, it will be pared down to absolute necessities.

The new budget, the governor said, will take into consideration numerous salary increases as well as increases in commodity costs.

"The state is having a great deal of difficulty in keeping key men on the job in the face of better pay offered by private industry and the federal government," Governor Sprague said. "But as an offset to the pay scale there will be a reduction in the number of people on the state payroll. A number of state departments are finding it possible to operate with less help now since the demand upon their services has been substantially reduced. We are also short-handed at some of the state institutions where it has been found impossible to replace experienced professional help."

Another saving would be made in capital outlays, the governor pointed out, with typewriters and automobiles being rationed.

The governor said that he through the legislature should continue the appropriations made by the last session for new state buildings—a $1,000,000 office building and a $325,000 treatment hospital at the state institution for the mentally ill—and to make additional appropriations for other badly needed buildings so that work could be undertaken without unnecessary delay after the war ends when there will be a need for work of this type to take up some of the slack in employment.

To date a total of 124 Oregon young men who are otherwise eligible for military service have been granted deferment as conscientious objectors according to records of the state selective service board. During the first World War Oregon produced only 17 conscientious objectors. The 124 includes men who would be classified as 1-A. Eighteen others with slight physical disqualifications have also been granted deferment as conscientious objectors.

An increase of $3,282,835.58 in the assessed valuation of public utilities in Oregon—from $168,867,974.87 in 1941 to $172,150,810.45 in 1942—is reported by the state tax commissioner. The apportioned valuation of utilities in Malheur county was increased from $2,023,555.40 to $2,029,086.39.

There will be no state fair in Oregon this year. This definite announcement was made by Governor Sprague following a conference with J. D. Mickle, state director of agriculture and Leo Spitzbart manager of the fair. Cancellation of the fair was decided upon because of the tire shortage as well as the labor situation, the governor said. Judging of 4-H exhibits which win blue ribbons at county fairs will be carried on at the fair grounds during the week usually given over to the fair and the annual sale of 4-H club fat stock will be held as usual but except for the boys and girls in charge of the stock on its way to market none of the club members will come to Salem as in normal years.
