be a real stride in fish conservation in the state of Oregon and right in line with conservation of our resources for the war effort, according to E. J. Church, president of the Oregon Wildlife Federation.

"Everyone familiar with the bill will vote 'yes' on referendum No. 310," President Church stated, "as it will not only save our steelhead, and make for better angling in the state, but will eventually aid the salmon fisherman as well."

"In brief, the measure provides that there shall be no net fishing in coastal streams and bays (exclusive of the Columbia) from November 30 to June 1. At first reading this seems like a sad blow to commercial fisherman, but when it is learned that only 3.7 percent of the total present average catch of salmon is taken during that time, it can readily be seen that the natural propagation of fish that thus escape the nets will soon make up the difference. "The sad part of the picture has been that 82 percent of the total present average catch of steelhead is taken during that period, and steelhead are admittedly of little or no value to commercial fishermen, while most sportsmen claim them to be the greatest game fish of all."

"Knowing these facts, the state legislature passed the measure and it was subsequently signed by Governor Sprague. Now it is up to the public to reaffirm the decision of their legislators, and if every voter is familiar with referendum No. 310, I am certain it will pass in the November election."

Security Is One of Mankind's Greatest Blessings

Greatest Blessings

The Farmers Cooperative Creamery, started as a small organization in 1915, has been functioning for 27 years. The Long life of this cooperative proves the value and efficiency of the cooperative plan, giving patrons a feeling of security and loyalty. The cooperative movement is more solidly entrenched than ever.

We look upon the warrior as a symbol of security. We are living in one of the most critical periods in history and people are looking for something with a solid foundation. In the dairy industry in this community this cooperative represents that solid foundation.

This organization is just as strong as the members who belong to it. During the first eight months of 1942 we manufactured 1,909,921 pounds of butter and 894,012 pounds of feed grade dried milk powder. We commenced manufacturing edible dried skim milk powder in March, 1942 and up to September 1 we produced 708,052 pounds.
