Mrs. America Meets The War

When all little piggies go to market after April 1, Mrs. America will find them under uniform price ceilings. The new pork price ceilings will replace present control at the highest March levels of the individual merchant. The new regulation will stipulate the maximum price in cents per pound which can be charged Mrs. America. One price list will be set up to apply to independent stores with annual total sales less than $250,000 and another will govern chain and independent stores with more than $250,000 annual sales. An official list of the maximum prices must be displayed prominently by every retailer of pork when the regulation goes into effect. However, the butcher can charge less than the maximum price. Beef, veal, lamb and mutton also will be placed on uniform cents per pound price ceilings in the future.

Mrs. America will not have to face war without her lipstick. Manufacturers will continue to turn out sufficient lipstick for American women despite shortages of certain ingredients. Both wax and castor oil used for this cosmetic are not plentiful these days because of increased essential war uses and decreased imports. There may be a further reduction in the color selection of lipstick though. There's no need to fear that there will be shiny noses during the war for powder is no problem at all. It is easy to manufacture, and there is plenty of the basic talc which is a soft slippery soapstone, which is easily pulverized.

Bread crumbs felt the efforts of war so keenly that the office of price administration allowed a price increase of about 2 1/2 cents per pound at retail. This price increase probably saved the bread crumbs from extinction for manufacturers could not make ends meet after the department of agriculture economy order forbidding the return of unsold bread by retail stores. This situation instead of stale loaves. The increase allowed takes into consideration necessitated the use of fresh bread crumbs, used as an extender of meat and other scarce food products.

The war production board has assured owners of radios that they'll be able to keep their sets in repair for the duration thanks to the victory line of replacement parts. When this production begins, a few types of each receiving set component will be substituted for the great number produced in peace time. Meantime, the war production board is considering the possibility of resuming the manufacture of radio tubes which was virtually suspended last June. At the present time replacement tubes are supplied owners of home sets from existing stocks.

Housewives who can adapt their marketing hours to suit their own conveniences are being urged to shop early to avoid the crowds. Early shoppers also help grocers in handling the collection of ration stamps under the point system. And at the same time, early marketing will leave the later hours for the woman who works.

The stepped-up production of glass containers for foods has turned considerable attention to closures. Since metal is out, glass, ceramics, wood and paper are being substituted for the critical material wherever possible. So far, however, no satisfactory substitute has been reported for a metal closure for canned fruits, vegetables, juices and meats. So, as a means of saving metal, jar openings are kept as small as possible and till not interfering with the removal of the food. And old covers and caps are being salvaged for re-use.

Silk and nylon stockings are as scarce as the proverbial hen's teeth, but at the same time the stocking salvage campaign is making great progress. The war production board reported that the third month of the national drive netted an increase of 81.4 percent over the first month's collection. In all, the 12-

522,540 pairs of discarded silk and nylon stockings salvaged by Mrs. America would stretch 14,211 miles if they were placed end to end. But here's how the worn out stockings cover the distance. They go to fighting fronts as vitally needed powder bags and in other military guise.

Butter Stock FROZEN

In compliance with an OPA order, effective Sunday, March 21 at midnight, it is mandatory that all butter stocks remain frozen until Monday, March 29, when purchases may again be made with the coupons from your War Ration Book No. 2.

America is the "pantry of the world" and in order to keep the shelves well filled so that our Allies and the men in the fighting forces may be amply provided with the necessities of life some conservation measures are necessary. Another most worthy objective in this particular instance is to assure that the Nation's stock of butter will be equitably distributed.

The Farmers Cooperative Creamery

again is privileged to comply with a government order which is considered imperative in our Fight For Freedom.

For sometime past the Government has been taking thirty per cent of the butter manufactured by the Farmer's Co-operative Creamery each month and this stock goes to the men in the armed forces and our Allies.

We wish to assure our many loyal customers throughout this section that every effort will be made to supply sufficient butter for their needs under the new rationing program, which becomes effective on March 29th.
