Mrs. America Meets The War

Call it Salisbury steak, ground round steak or just hamburger, but OPA rationing regulations set up a definition of this popular meat item, including specification for the retail dealer to follow. If a housewife wants to use some of her point stamps for round steak, chuck, rump or sirloin ground, she will buy these in whole form, paying the correct number of points, and then have them ground to order. But if she buys ready ground hamburger, defined as "beef ground from necks, flanks, shanks, briskets, plates and miscellaneous beef trimmings and beef fat", she will not be required to pay more than five points a pound. Of course, the points stamps needed to obtain meat, cheese, canned fish and edible fats and oils under the new rationing program, which went into effect March 29, are the red stamps in war ration book two.

No increase in points for the processed foods rationing program is intended for the new ration period. During April Mrs. America will have 48 points to spend for her purchases of canned, frozen, and dried fruits and vegetables and all soups. These points will be obtained by the blue stamps in War Ration Book Two bearing the letters D, E, and F. The blue stamps lettered A, B, and C will not be valid after March 31st. Beginning March 25th, D, E, and F blue stamps can be used for purchasing rationed processed foods, but if housewives take advantage of this prevalidation, they'll have to do stricter budgeting of points during April.

Perhaps Mrs. America has made up her mind that fine linens are to be chalked up as a wartime casualty for whatever fibres are available in this country go for essential war use first. And besides the United States is not equipped to manufacture luxurious linens for there are practically no spindles, looms, the proper type of flax or trained labor for this type of production. If some of your precious linen possessions bear the names of occupied countries of France, Belgium, Austria, Czechoslovakia stamped in the selvage, realize these are truly relics. Other linen-making countries of Russia, Ireland, Switzerland, certainly cannot spare much labor for non-essentials, and neither is there cargo space for luxuries. So obviously, handkerchief linen, dress linen, drapery and upholstery linen, and table damask should be handled with the greatest of care for a decrease in their availability is inevitable.

Want something new and different for your family's dinner? Shark steak is a suggestion of the office of the coordinator of fisheries, which reports that war has introduced soupfin shark meat into some American kitchens. It was revealed that tasty shark, in either kippered or lightly smoked form, is becoming more available. Kipperd shark is said to have a flavor similar to smoked salmon, and it is also pale pinkish orange in color.

Costume jewelry counters will continue to intrigue Mrs. America even if there are necessarily substituted for critical metals. Look for bracelets of straw and plastic earrings. Pins of wood, shell necklaces and glass beads are other items which brighten costume jewelry counters.

And still on the department store's main floor, a look at the glove counter shows little change by the war so far in dress gloves. However, goatskin, horsehide and capekin are less available, and many skilled glovemakers now are engaged in war production. As for handbags, war needs have a priority on leather, and the frames must be made of non-critical plastics. Neither are metal nor critical plastics allowed for zippers. Further on the subject of leather goods, luggage and small leather accessories no longer can be made of cattle hide, calf or kid leather.

Colorful red and blue stamps contained in war ration book two may be appealing to Junior as a plaything, but it's up to Mrs. America to keep this precious book out of the hands of her youngsters. Take for example one case reported by the west coast war price and ration board of a tot gathering up family ration books and distributing stamps to people passing his home. Perhaps he got a paddling, but the board declared his mother needed reprimanding for not taking care of family ration books. The OPA says it's up to bookholders to guard war ration books one and two carefully to prevent loss, stealing or mutilation. Anyone needing to replace a ration book must apply to his local war price and rationing board on form No. R-194. A board may hold up the issuance of a replacement for as long as 60 days if it finds that the book was lost or stolen through negligence on the part of the owner. And many boards also require applicants to report the case to the police.

NEWELL HEIGHTS

The Mathews family have moved to the Schiemer tenant house as the family will work there this summer. A full basement has been poured and soon the house just recently bought and moved there will be ready for occupancy.

Earl Leach and family have moved into the Frank Ray house vacated by the Mathews family as he is working for Mr. Ray. They will also farm his 20 acres together.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Sugg and Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Young transacted business in Ontario Monday.

The Modern Pioneer club ladies made final plans to serve the noon lunch at the Zack Walker sale at their regular meeting Tuesday. They sold lunches at two sales this week. Some of the money is used for subscriptions to the Gate City Journal for the 17 boys of this community who are in the army, navy or marines.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schiemer, and their son and daughter and Joyce Kurtz were Sunday afternoon callers at the Elfers home in Big Bend.

Lester Goulet is under the care of his doctor, who found his hip out of place. He is around but not able to work.

Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Overstreet were Sunday dinner guests at the M. L. Judd home Sunday.

R. R. Overstreet, William Smith, Mrs. Walter Pinkston, Mrs. Wesley Piercy and Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Kurtz were among the 15 members of the United Presbyterian church who attended the all day and evening meeting in Nampa Thursday.

M. L. Judd began the planting of Potatoes Monday morning. C. B. Hill will start when Judd finishes. These are the first potatoes to be planted. Onions, lettuce and other small crops are coming up.

Merle Kutz writes that he was submitting to another eye operation his fourth, last week-end. He was given permission to finish his primary flying 12 days ahead of his class, hoping he would be ready to go on to basic with his class.
