

Washington, D. C., April 22--Every egg dealer in Oregon who has been storing surplus eggs in anticipation of the season when the hens are not producing freely will have his supply bought by the government on June 1. Thereafter communities will have to depend on their local supply. It is too much to predict that there will be an egg crisis, but there will be a district shortage and it is not impossible that before the end of the war eggs will be on the rationed list. Eggs are now more precious than rubies in England.

The food distributing agency is looking forward to a tough time with dealers and consumers when the egg buying policy becomes effective. It may surprise some civilians to know that 300 carloads of powdered eggs were rolled into Portland terminals to be placed in Joe Stalin's ships and sent to Vladivostok; that other tons have been sent to Russia from the Atlantic coast and that England has been receiving great quantities. There has been an unprecedented demand for bulletins from the department of agriculture giving instructions on how to raise poultry. Orders have been issued that baby chicks cannot be sold to the Easter trade as this is a waste of potential hens and eggs. Even candy eggs, the chocolate variety, have been prohibited.

For the new air base at Madras in Jefferson county, which has some 40,000 acres of level land without a rock or bit of sagebrush, the federal housing agency will build 22 family units for civilian war workers. Government has already expended $2,000,000 on the base. Madras will, according to present plans, be the last airport that the army will establish in the Oregon country. A few more flight strips alongside arterial highways are yet to be completed, however. These are for emergency purposes. No tabulation has been made available, and probably will not be until after the war, as to the number of millions of dollars the army and navy have spent in Oregon.

Statistics show that 710 Oregon farmers received from the government in excess of $1,000 for reducing production in 1941. From the agricultural conservation program these farmers received $829,449 and parity payments were $661,412, a total for these farmers of $1,490,861, sponsored by the United Presbyterian church.

You'll Thank Your Lucky Stars for Full Shelves Next Fall!

The home vegetable garden is an important contribution to the war effort. The production of foods for your own family is worth much more than the actual cash value of the things you grow. Along with millions of other victory gardens it will add immeasurably to America's food supply.

No one knows now which foods will be plentiful, and which scarce, next fall. But you can be sure your family will eat well if you give your garden the attention it deserves.

Then come plans for preserving and storing for next winter's meals. Recipes and information on canning methods are easy to obtain. A good file, started now, will be invaluable for the canning season.

And, keep your electric range ready for hard service during the canning season. Give it good care every day. Grease and spilled food particles may reduce the life of your surface plates, oven elements and switches. Keep these parts of your range clean and avoid possible inconveniences later.
