CIVILIZATION IS CONTRAST

The question of the extent of our present civilization has been made more complicated by the world war in which we are now engaged.

Civilization means the state of being reclaimed from savagery and the condition in which people enjoy fine arts and culture. While we do have the privilege of viewing fine works of art and enjoying the advantages of other good things of life the savage instincts that beat in the breast of man prevent us from experiencing the full possibilities of our civilization.

Civilization develops contrasts, in which we find poverty and riches, beauty and vulgarity, morality and immorality and happiness and sorrow. We find tenements and mansions, go-carts and airplanes, plow sticks and tractors and peace and war, and war only increases the contrasts.

We are told that after the war we will be able to fly to Europe in 14 hours for $300 in an airplane, which has been largely developed through its use in destructive warfare. After all these years a common man will be able to reach Europe at reasonable cost, but when he alights, at most any spot, he will find rubble in place of fine monuments erected to posterity through the activities of our civilized nations. The fine works of art and places of beauty that were created by civilization have been destroyed by civilization.

The beautiful calm after the storm will settle down on the earth again, but only time will tell whether man will gather together the stones of civilization and build a peace that will be lasting and satisfactory to all.

FEED SUPPLIES OUTLOOK BETTER

An improved outlook for feed supplies for livestock and poultry producers was disclosed by N. E. Dodd, national administrator of the AAA, at the recent meeting of the state AAA committee and Oregon State college staff men. The brighter outlook applies both to wheat and to high protein supplies.

Enough feed wheat to meet all normal livestock needs for an indefinite period will be available through the Commodity Credit corporation as a result of recent congressional action, Dodd announced. Cost may vary slightly, but is expected to remain near the present price based on the relationship to corn parity prices.

A probable solution of the shortage of high protein concentrates is seen by Dodd in arrangements recently completed with oil seed crushers. Under these arrangements the CCC will control approximately 25 per cent of the country's total supply of vegetable protein concentrates in contrast to only 4 per cent last year.

This reserve will be used as a pool from which to make allocations to different regions so that each state may receive supplies based on consumption in 1941 and 1942. Total supplies are expected to be enough to meet feeding requirements based on approved protein ratios.

Further to facilitate equitable distribution, handlers of soybean meal will be limited by the crushers to 15-days supply to avoid accumulating stock piles. The War Food administration also has the right to cut in on any contract for the purchase of vegetable proteins if necessary to take care of deficiency areas such as the Pacific states have been recently.

While the new program will not be fully effective until about December 1, nearly half the mills are still crushing soybeans from last year's crop and some animal protein is being imported, so that even the outlook for the immediate future is improved, Dodd pointed out.

However, local residents point out that Malheur county will be short of hay unless growers desist from selling to out-of-county buyers.

'42 FARM INCOME SETS NEW RECORD

Cash farm income in Oregon for 1942 reached approximately $220,000,000, the greatest of record, according to estimates of the U. S. department of agriculture and the Oregon agricultural extension service. This amount is nearly double the average from 1935 to 1939, before world war II. For the first four months of 1943, furthermore the cash farm income in Oregon from the sale of crop and animal products was nearly one-fifth greater than for the same period in 1942.

Agriculture is the principal basic source of income in Oregon over a period of years, but timber and lumber is a close second when the value added by manufacture is included in figuring income, according to U.S.D.A. and O.S.C. statistics. Mine and quarry products and fishery output are additional important basic resources. These four, with value added by manufacture included, usually account for near one-half of Oregon's income, except during periods of economic depression.

At mid-July the Oregon general farm price level stood at 194 per cent of the 1935-1939 average, as calculated by the Oregon agricultural extension service. Despite a 3-point decline since mid-May, the general level is still 28 per cent higher than a year ago.

Farm costs are higher than a year ago, also, with the U.S. index of prices paid for commodities, interest and taxes up over 8 per cent and the U. S. farm wage index up 36 per cent.

Average farm wage rates in Oregon per month with board are 47 per cent higher than a year ago. Increases in the cost of hay and feed have also been greater in Oregon than in the county as a whole.

REGULATIONS ON PRICES REVIEWED

One of the recent bulletins received at the Nyssa war price and rationing office from the district office states that maximum price regulation 435 has a dollars and cents ceiling on all bicycle tires and tubes. These specific retail prices will hold down an inflationary tendency brought about by the scarcity of bicycle tires.

The new maximum price regulation 429, "certain used consumer durable goods", becomes effective September 1. This regulation covers such used articles as bedding, used furniture, stoves, lamps, tools, small hardware and miscellaneous houseware items. It has a simple pricing method. If the article is in good condition, has no missing parts, and is ready to use without further repair the dealer may mark the article 75 per cent of the new price. If the used article does not fall into this category 33 1-3 per cent of the new price is all the dealer can charge.
