

Washington, D.C. June 1.—Conflicting policies pursued by war food administration and office of price administration have brought about an alarming situation in the feed supply, according to reports reaching the national capital. Stocks of corn and wheat, the staples for livestock feed, are being decimated so rapidly that shortages are appearing in all parts of the country and particularly in the northwest where a deficit has existed even in normal years. The available supply of feed wheat will be practically exhausted before another harvest and the situation with respect to corn is almost as serious. As of April 1 the available supply of livestock feed was approximately one billion bushels less than on the same date one year ago.

Before the war and in the period of the so-called ever-normal granary the United States had a carry-over supply of feed grains amounting to about one year's requirements. Because of the greatly increased livestock population in the past three years feed has been disappearing at the rate of one and one-third crops a year, so that its ultimate exhaustion became a mathematical certainty within a given period. Imposition of price ceiling by OPA and urging by WPA for greater livestock production have operated to aggravate this condition to such an extent as to make a feed shortage inevitable.

Lack of cargo vessels available for that purpose curtails possible augmentation of feed supplies by importation of corn from Argentina and while there is a small reservoir of surplus wheat in Canada, there is a disposition in government circles to conserve this supply against the time when it may be needed for human consumption. If unfavorable conditions develop in United States wheat fields there will be urgent need for this grain even at the sacrifice of the livestock industry. The situation has now become so serious that one high government official is quoted as saying that it is possible the newspapers will be carrying true stories of entire poultry flocks being killed off for lack of feed.

Recent removal of rationing points from certain cuts of meat was for the purpose of encouraging sales of meat, thereby reducing the livestock population and relieving the feed situation, but less meat is consumed during the summer months and the effect has not been up to the expectations of OPA. Nor is the situation improved by the OPA announcement that full rationing of meat may be resumed at an early date.

Members of the house were undecided whether to become hilarious or indignant over complaints received from grocers and other retail dealers because of a suggestion from office of price administration that they wash ration tokens before handing them back to customers in making change for ration stamps. The suggestion reads: "Retailers can please customers by handing out clean, fresh-looking tokens in change for stamps." As hundreds of millions of these tokens are in circulation and the daily "take" by a retailer may run into the thousands it is somewhat discouraging to contemplate the waste of manpower which would be involved in washing each individual token in order that it might be kept "clean and fresh-looking."

Back of the filing of an anti-trust suit against American match companies is a much more serious matter than the present shortage of matches in the United States. Because of the cartel in which American, British and Swedish match companies are participants, it is alleged in the anti-trust suit, "this country had practically no production of chlorate of potash at the outbreak of the war" for the making of ammunition, flares and other signals. This situation, it is asserted, was due to the entrance of the ubiquitous I.G. Farbenindustrie of Germany into the picture, and dates from 1922 when that German chemical trust made the Diamond Match company its exclusive agent in the United States on condition that the American company cease manufacturing this chemical. Nyssa Boy Helps Guard Shipments

Allied Force Headquarters, Mediterranean Theater—High on bleak hilltops exposed to every quirk of the elements, hidden among the trees on hillsides, and in scattered sites all along the coast of North Africa, the soldiers of an anti-aircraft unit are on a 24-hour alert every day as they guard a vital North African port against nazi "hit and run" raiders.
"Whenever Jerry does come over to interrupt our activities, he doesn't get very far, because the barrage we throw up at him usually makes most of those raiders turn around and head for home in a hurry," say the soldiers who man these guns.
A carefully planned program keeps these soldiers busy every day. There's always gun drill, perfecting their already expert defense against daring raiders; or first-aid lectures; or small arms firing, for all these soldiers are experts in handling the rifle, pistol, sub-machine gun and other infantry weapons.
Every day the officers of the unit walk from gun site to gun site and give the men the latest news, lead discussions on recent developments in the news, analyse the latest trends at home, and carry on a well-planned educational program that has the men interested and even excited over the daily discussions.
An athletic program, including baseball games, gives the men healthful recreation. And on almost every gunsite the soldiers themselves have built volleyball courts that are in use all day every day.
And in what little spare time is left, these soldiers have been working on their living quarters, making them real homes. Little gardens, stone walks between the huts, shelves, tables, chairs, foot-lockers, and the inevitable pin-up girls make these huts look like home.

"We wouldn't trade this job for anything," say these soldiers. We have beautiful surroundings and an interesting assignment, and a lot of fun at our posts, along with the work. And we feel that we're doing a lot of good here in protecting vital shipments once they arrive at our port.
Among the soldiers who man these gun sites is Pvt. Wilfred D. Gilbert of route 2, Nyssa.

Let Us Tell You John Why Oregon and Idaho Have Joined 28 Other Dairying States In Raising An Advertising Fund

For promotion of the dairy industry after the war when the government is no longer the dairyman's best customer.

Dangers lie ahead—Dangers that threaten to reduce the size of the dairyman's milk and cream check. The dairyman must face these facts:

No after-the-war market is yet in sight for the 10 billion pounds of extra milk now being produced for wartime needs.

Because of wartime rationing of dairy foods housewives are forming habits of using dairy product substitutes.

Dairy food surpluses, followed by price crashes, are sure to occur unless post-war demand for dairy products is built up to war-time production.

Dairymen Rallying To Promotion Program

Farmers across the nation are mobilizing now to prevent chaos, confusion and depression after the war—mobilizing in raising a post war advertising and research fund to be used through their own organization, the American Dairy association.

Oregon by law and Idaho voluntarily are contributing to this fund. Dairymen are given credit for having secured enactment of the Oregon legislation, which was passed at the last session of the legislature.

Through this post-war mobilization fund the dairy farmers of America will be ready to undertake a program of nation-wide advertising, promotion and research designed to increase consumption of milk, butter, cheese, evaporated milk, ice cream and powdered milk. They will be organized and will get results.

The dairy farmers know that it will take united and aggressive action to head off surpluses and price crashes after the war. They are meeting the challenge.

At the last legislative session dairymen secured enactment of legislation which provides for a deduction in the price of milk to promote the interest of the dairy industry through act to bring about a wide variety of products and a better standing of their value. In order to finance the commission, it is estimated that during the next year each dairyman will have to contribute $1.00 per cow. The commission will be organized in July and will have its first meeting in August.

To Water Users
Since we have had to abandon the low pressure, here are a few simple rules we must follow:
Do not water from 1 p. m. to 4 p. m.
Do not allow hoses to lay in one place long enough to waste water down streets and sidewalks.
Water must be off from 10 p. m. to 6 a. m.
Above all else remember that any time the fire siren blows turn off all water. This will allow more pressure to fight said fires.
