

Washington, D. C., Oct. 26.—Between Jan. 1, 1934, and December, 1941 (Pearl Harbor was Dec. 7 1941) the United States treasury paid a premium to Japan of $291,283,804 on gold purchased. The premium is the difference between the old price of gold, $20.67 per fine ounce, and the new price of $35 per fine ounce. This much is known from the records of the treasury department. Japan, of itself, produces little gold, but in addition to the premium known to have been paid, Japan is suspected of having secured an even greater amount by shipping gold to Canada and to London.

American purchases from London and Canada in that period were enormous and it is asserted that the Japanese took gold from Manchuria and China to supplement its own production and sold it to the treasury through those then neutral countries. Great Britain received a premium in excess of two and a quarter billion dollars, and Canada a premium of almost two billion dollars. No figures of gold purchases from any country since Pearl Harbor are available. The acknowledged Japanese gold entered the United States at Seattle and San Francisco. Representatives of the lumber industry in the national capital predict the closing of scores of small sawmills in the days immediately following the war—plants now producing 25,000 feet in an eight hour shift. These plants, they explain, operate principally on logs which come from independent timber-owners and as these owners cut they also reduce their source of supply. There is such a heavy demand for lumber, and such inroads are being made to meet these requirements, that the timber suitable to these small operations is rapidly disappearing.

The more inaccessible timber can afford to be reached by large operators, and these outfits have years of supply ahead of them. The war situation has made the timber owners and the lumber industry more alive to the necessity of complying with the practice of the "annual yield"—not to cut more timber than the annual growth of an area. State laws requiring loggers to leave a certain percentage of standing timber to reseed will be more strictly enforced in order to have a perpetual supply of timber for the future needs of the nation.

Just as soon as the war in Europe is over scores of thousands of Europeans intend migrating to the United States instead of remaining in their native land to rehabilitate it. The American Legion recognizes that a flood of foreigners will make the job situation in the United States difficult and they wish to curb it. They are asking that immigration be suspended for several years after the war, until the millions of Americans in uniform are demobilized and have found work. Since Hitler came into power innumerable "refugees" have come into the United States on visitor's permit and many others have been smuggled in, until no one knows the exact number of these aliens.

The five proposed dams on Snake river to improve navigation as far as Lewiston, Idaho, appear to have successfully run the gantlet and are items in the rivers and harbors bill which has passed the house. As a matter of fact, the five dams will be built in that section of Snake river which is in the state of Washington. They are part of the development of the Columbia basin, the great irrigation project to be watered from Grand Coulee dam and are needed to carry the heavy products of Idaho down the Snake and Columbia to tidewater. Idaho is expecting important overseas trade and believes this improvement will be of material assistance in realizing this expectation.

The idea lurking in the minds of advocates of the five Snake river dams is that products from Idaho will be taken to the Vancouver-Portland area for processing or shipped "as is" to the orient. If the program for the dams is carried through they should be built by the first section of the Grand Coulee reclamation project is ready for settlement.

Letters received by the northwest congressional delegations from American soldiers who have served in Alaska at various times since 1942 inquire what prospect they will have for jobs in that northern territory after they have received their discharge. Soldiers who have lived in tents with a temperature 40 degrees below zero write that they have fallen in love with the country, do not mind the climate, and they express a desire to return to that part of the world.

Real Democrats Fear Communist Control of Nation

The Hilman-Browder team have taken over the Democratic party. Browder, ex-convict and Presidential candidate of the communistic party is making speeches for Roosevelt, and against Dewey. James W. Ford, negro three times candidate for the Vice Presidency with Browder in a late speech said:

"Basically, the policies of President Roosevelt are those we have fought for. Our duty is to see that he is again elected."

Democrat Leaders Are Alarmed

In a speech in Congress Feb. 21st, of this year, speaking of the influence of Communism, Senator Johnson from Colorado said:

"Inch by inch the influences represented by those individuals have crept into our Government. The danger of such influences has been recognized by Members of Congress from both of our dominant political parties."

Senator Bailey, veteran Senator from North Carolina, said:

"We are face to face with an organized, well-financed, ably led movement by the leftist-wing members of the American Labor Party to capture the Democratic Party by infiltration."

Senator Pat McCarran, fighting Democrat from Nevada, said:

"The trend to centralization, economic and industrial as well as political, constitutes today the greatest menace to democracy."

Hon. Hatton W. Summers, of Texas, on the floor of the House, recently said:

"Under the influences of these alien ideologies, there has been created a government of bureaus and bureaucrats who make the law, enforce the law, and interpret the law."

Labor Union Press Sounds Warning

"If the fourth-term effort is successful, Hilman visualizes himself as the patronage and legislative labor czar. Only defeat of the New Deal in November can stop him."

This crowd is using the war, in which our boys are dying by the thousands, as an argument to keep themselves in power in order that the corruption of our form of Government may be completed.
