TOWN and FARM in WARTIME

Prepared by OFFICE OF WAR INFORMATION

DECEMBER POINT VALUES UNCHANGED

Point values for rationed meats, butter, margarine, cheese, canned milk, canned fish and processed foods will continue unchanged from November values during December, the Office of Price Administration points out. At the same time it was stated December meat poundage is expected to be about 5.4 percent higher than last month, while the quantity of rationed meats is estimated at 11.8 percent above November levels. The increases, OPA cautioned, are small in relation to the country's ability to consume. 3,000 CARS IN MONTH'S QUOTA A total of 3,000 automobiles makes up the national quota of new motor cars available for sale this month--the same amount as in November. December passenger car tire quotas, however, will be 150,000 units higher, or 2,000,000 tires, than in the preceding month, OPA states. A slightly higher quota of truck tires spells little or no relief from shortages in this category.

PACE OF WAR TELLS CONSUMER STORY

The intensified pace of fighting on all fronts tells consumers the story of home front supplies. Shortages must continue indefinitely. Our armies are shooting off munitions at such a rate that demands on the labor supply and raw materials are further increased. Thus the civilian story continues to be one of "patch, men, conserve, make it do." Some examples: About 90,000 workers needed immediately to man work stations in plants producing "topmost" war items... military demands for all types of gasoline up to 800,000 barrels a day in 1944 from 150,000 barrels a day in 1941... scarcely half enough radio receiving tubes have been available in the past two years to replace those worn out, and shortages expected to last several months beyond defeat of Germany and Japan.

WOMEN IN SKILLED TRADES

Approximately 800 women in 18 skilled trades are now employed as apprentices under procedures and methods developed by the Apprentice-Training Service of the War Manpower Commission, WMC officials report. The trades include airline mechanics, cabinetmakers, carpenters, coremakers, machinists, draftsmen, instrument makers, radio technicians and aircraft and radio electricians as well as dental mechanics, jewelers, printers, watchmakers, bookbinders, dressmakers, meat cutters and cosmeticians.

PRICE CONTROLS PROTECT FARMERS

The farmers of this country have a direct personal interest in controlling inflation. They know, first of all, that it is the patriotic duty of every American to resist inflationary price increases during the war. They know that by increasing their production to keep pace with the unprecedented wartime demands, both by the Armed Services and by the civilian population, they have made the most effective possible contribution to the fight against inflation. They are justly proud of this achievement.

Now that the prospect of victory in Europe draws nearer, American farmers have an added reason for supporting price stabilization. The end of the war in Europe will necessarily be followed by a diminishing demand for agricultural commodities. Instead of being hard pressed to supply the demand, American farmers will be confronted with the problem of war accumulated supplies and of surplus in various lines of production. In other words, the agricultural sectors of the economy must be prepared to meet and solve the problems resulting from deflationary rather than inflationary pressures affecting their output.

The industrial sectors of the economy, however, will present a very different picture, at least until the end of the war with Japan and the reconversion of industry to a peacetime basis. Until that time inflationary pressures may be expected to predominate because the production of civilian goods will not be large enough to meet the current and accumulated demands, including the demands of farmers for many things that have been unobtainable since the war started.

It is clear, therefore, that unless price controls are maintained and enforced to prevent these inflationary pressures from driving up the prices of many things the farmer will need and want, he will be at a serious disadvantage. He would find himself in the unhappy position of selling his products at lower prices than he enjoyed during the war and of being obliged to buy the goods he wants at inflated prices. For that reason, every thoughtful farmer will give full support to a continuation of price controls until the manufacturing plants of the nation have been able to resume peacetime production in sufficient volume to meet all demands. When that day is reached there will no longer be any need or reason for retaining controls which, however irksome, are vitally necessary to the economic welfare of the entire nation.

SPECIAL WAR BOND FOR OLD Bonds ideal for an estate.

Washington, D. C. Dec.--The Treasury has a bond especially for the older people, but many of them don't know about it, the Agricultural Section of the War Finance Division points out. This is the current income Series G-Bond paying 2 1/2 percent interest per annum every six months and maturing in 12 years.

Any person who needs income from interest on their money should consider the G-Series. For a current income Government Bond maturing in 12 years, 2 1/2 percent is a high rate of interest, the Treasury points out. Current income is not the only G Bond feature that appeals to the old investor. Like the popular E Bonds the G Series has fixed redemption values. They can be cashed anytime after 6 months from issue. Counting interest already received, this cash redemption value is always more than cost. In the event of owner's death the estate can redeem G Bonds at full cost price without any deduction for interest already received. This makes G Bonds ideal for an estate.
