With The Fifth Army, Italy—Pfc Leslie L. Cleaver of Nyssa is a member of the 337th "Wolverine" regiment, which recently took 3000-foot Mount Pratone in the Gothic line, digging German soldiers out of elaborate concrete pillboxes and earth works on its forested slopes. The 337th Infantry regiment is in the 85th "Custer" division, part of the fifth army in Italy.

Its first was its toughest battle. The regiment won all its objectives when it struck out for Tremensuoli in the Gustav line last May 12, but in this battle lost a quarter of all the casualties it has suffered in seven months of warfare in Italy.

The 337th fought and won a bloody 72-hour battle before Terracina, playing a key role in rupture of the Hitler line. They moved on through Rome, across the Tiber river and up to Viterbo.

The "Wolverines" went back into the line to pierce the Gothic Line at one of its most formidable points.

They have been in combat steadily since, struggling forward through the towering mountains that separate Florence from Bologna, overcoming great obstacles made of mud, rain, wind and cold and living on fighting on the meagre supplies mules and men can carry up to them on their backs.

Colonel Oliver W. Hughes, Memphis, Tennessee, commands the 337th Regiment.
