He introduced a similar bill in the 78th congress but was unable to bring it to a vote. Mr. Gearhart charged that opposition to his bill came from attorneys representing German and Japanese interests and from college professors who admitted that they were representing the views of those who are opposed to the sale of seized alien property in this country.

Presenting the ways and means committee report. Representative Ludlow stated that while foreign property in the United States has a value of $3,500,000,000, the value of American owned property in foreign countries amounts to $13,350,000,000. American owned property in Germany is valued at $1,250,000,000 and American investments in Japan represents a value of $3,000,000,000, as against Japanese assets in the United States of $150,000,000. All these foreign owned assets in the United States are now under the control of the alien property custodian.

Commenting on these reports, Representative Rankin made a fiery speech in which he demanded to know the names of American firms and individuals who own property in foreign countries, just what the property was purchased and what it consists of. He insisted that the ones who own property in Germany and Japan are the very ones who were helping the Germans and Japanese military men get ready for war and "who will be demanding that we restore the property to them when the war is over." In his opinion, he said, such a list "will uncover some of the most dangerous warmakers in the world," and that "we are paying for their activities today with the blood of young men."

Representative Rankin asserted that these investors in foreign countries are the "same element that sold scrap iron, oil and gas to Japan, the very material the Japs are using to kill our boys now," and that when the war is over "they are going to be whining around us to put them back into possession of their properties abroad."

That the treatment by Japanese of their prisoners of war and of civilians interned by them in the Philippines may be made a matter of official record, the senate has referred to the military affairs committee a resolution calling for a complete investigation. Report of the disclosures revealed by evidence will be filed with the senate from time to time and the cost of the investigation will be paid from the senate contingent fund. It is not at present expected that the taking of testimony will require a visit to Manila, but the committee will be authorized to make the trip if it is thought to be necessary in order to obtain all the evidence. Back of the move is the probable purpose to lay the foundation for the filing of claims in the final peace settlement.

Although many members expressed the belief that an agricultural census at this time is unnecessary, the senate passed without a dissenting vote a house resolution appropriating $6,784,000 with which to complete the work already begun and for which an initial appropriation of $7,250,000 had been voted. Under an old law this census is to be taken every five years, and war food administration urged its need at this time to afford a basis for estimating the scope of the effort required to assure adequate food supplies during the war. Several senators contended that statistics already gathered by the department of agriculture furnished the desired data, but WPA said department figures are largely estimates and do not give a clear picture of the farming situation. Taking of the census is giving employment to 27,000 persons, mostly discharged veterans and women, together with men who have been cleared by the employment service as unfit for military service or work in war industries.

Speaking on his bill to provide match-money to states in setting up a program of physical training, Representative Weiss of Pennsylvania called attention to the fact that navy rejections for physical defects had been 54.9 per cent and army 50.1 per cent, and declared that had even half of these rejects been qualified for service there would have been no need to induct a single married man in this war. He estimated that those between the ages 18 and 27 who were adjudged incapable of military service now exceed 5,000,000 men.

DIRECTORS OF CREAMERY NAMED

Fred Burgess, Vale, and Clay Sutton, Midvale, were re-elected as directors of the Farmers Co-operative Creamery company at Payette when members held their annual meeting at Payette last week. T. D. Hartnett, Weiser, succeeded James H. Anderson as the third director to be elected this year.

The creamery is in better financial condition than at any time in history. W. G. Stacey, Salem auditor, reported. A 22 per cent increase in total butterfat received and a 76 per cent increase in the amount of whole milk received were reported.

D. H. McKenzie, manager, reported that the company is hoping to have a new spray dryer and vacuum pan installed by May 15 in time to take care of the increased volume of milk and cream which usually occurs about that time.

P. M. Brandt, head of the department of dairy husbandry of Oregon State college was the featured speaker and warned dairymen that if they did not police their own industry with regard to sanitation and disease control it would be done by people less familiar with
