SAIPAN
A TINY DOT ON YOUR WAR MAP OF THE PACIFIC...
BUT-
On Saipan today there is more than enough communications equipment in operation to meet the normal telephone requirements of a city of 190,000 people.
Here is graphic evidence of the reason for the shortage of telephone equipment at home. Then, too—with the realization that Saipan is only one small island on the way to Tokyo, you get some idea of the job that lies ahead.
Western Electric, producer of our telephone equipment, has manufactured much of the vast array of telephone, teletype and radio equipment used by our fighting forces and their allies in every theatre of war.
Another reason why there is not enough telephone equipment for all civilian needs.
