"TOO LITTLE and TOO LATE" POLICY HAS GIVEN US OUR SUGAR SHORTAGE

Jerome North Side News

The national sweet-tooth will have to be filled with something besides sugar, for we are told that America must get along on a million fewer tons this year than last year...and we don't recall any sugar surplus last year either. Lack of sugar is certain to affect home canning, a vital war-time food project.

This distressing situation no doubt could have been prevented had official Washington been sympathetic toward the western sugar beet industry. Despite all that sugar beets mean to the west, the industry has been an unwanted step-child of the "planners", who have argued these many years that we should buy our sweets in Cuba, the Philippines and elsewhere in order to boost overseas trade and raise living standards there. Just another case of being a world-wide good neighbor and penalizing the home folks.

Beet growers in this area well remember what scant support the crop received from government agencies as recently as 1943, long after the Philippines were lost. They just couldn't change their thinking habits of long standing. This year, with a critical shortage of sugar facing the nation, the government put some push and encouragement behind the sugar industry to help promote the growing of beets. But they were far too late, for the roots of the present sugar shortage extend back several years. If the supply of domestic sugar is to improve in 1946, the foundation for greater production must be laid now.

Long ago a wise man, none other than Thomas Jefferson, sagely remarked: "If we were told from Washington when to sow and when to reap, we would soon want bread."

Lincoln Heights

Several Lincoln residents attended funeral services for William McElroy, Sr., Tuesday in the Peterson chapel in Ontario. Interment was in the Ontario cemetery. Rev. Mark B. Lloyd, pastor of the Methodist church, and Rev. Bert Daniels, pastor of the Nazarene church, both of Ontario, officiated.

Mr. McElroy was born in Willis county, Illinois October 21, 1872 and moved to Corning, Iowa while still a small boy. He was married to Elizabeth B. Knoll of Ross, Iowa in 1905. They lived at Corning for three years and then went to Denton, Montana, where they farmed for 30 years. They moved to Oregon in 1936 and have resided here since.

His survivors are his widow; his son, William K. McElroy, quartermaster, first class, U. S. navy, somewhere on a troop transport in the Pacific; a brother George of Corning, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary West of Corning, Mrs. Bell Carrigill of Kimball, Nebraska, and Mrs. Rachel Kaman of Morrill, Nebraska.

Mrs. Beth S. J. Pennington died Saturday night at the Payette General hospital at the age of 84. Services were conducted Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Payette Church of Christ with the pastor, Rev.

Frank T. Gosser officiating.

Mrs. Pennington was born February 24, 1861 in Platt county, Missouri. She was married to William George Pennington at Winnemucca, Nevada February 25, 1879. They lived at Winnemucca until 1882, when they moved to Vale, Oregon, where they homesteaded. Mr. Pennington and two daughters preceded Mrs. Pennington in death. She is survived by a son, George Pennington of Lincoln Heights and a daughter, Mrs. Merton Thayer.

Rev. and Mrs. R. L. Kriner were present at Lincoln Sunday school Sunday morning, June 3. Rev. Kriner delivered a message following classes. The Kriner family were entertained at Sunday dinner at the Jule Houston home. Services were also held by Rev. Kriner in the evening in the schoolhouse.

The farmers in this community who are raising peas for the canning, had their fields dusted by plane last week.

Mrs. A. P. Enevoldson left last week for Battle Ground, Washington, where she will reside.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Pettit and daughters and Donna Bookstool visited Mrs. Pettit's mother, Mrs. Cora Dale, at Midvale last Wednesday.

Althea Hawkins became a new member of the White Settlement Garden club Thursday. Peggy Terrel assisted in serving refreshments.

Miss Helen Trinkel returned Sunday from Los Angeles, where she attended George Pepperdine college. Miss Trinkel was awarded a scholarship in music and after spending the summer with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trenkle, she will return to the college to continue her studies. She was graduated from Ontario high school in 1943.

Twenty-three pre-school children attended a clinic held at the schoolhouse Tuesday morning. The clinic was conducted by Mrs. Edna Parris, county public health nurse. The children returned Thursday morning for a check-up.

Here From Utah-- Delano Greenwood of Ogden is here visiting Mr. and Mrs. Marion Hammon.

Letter To The Editor

Editor's Note: The following article, taken from the Fireside column written by Mrs. Harry Lenhardt of Hancock, Iowa for the Oakland (Iowa) Acorn was submitted for publication in Nyssa by Mrs. J. W. Jennings of route 2, Nyssa, because of the timely interest in the subject of compulsory military training.

There is this one thing about a fireside in a country home--one can sit here peacefully beside it and listen to the clamor of the outside world--and--being too far removed to join in the bedlam, we have time to digest at least a part of it--and ponder on the fact that people really are funny.

It seems we can't wait for the second world war to end to start the third one. Already many of our magistrates are asking for compulsory military training in peacetime. Are we fighting now for perpetual warfare or permanent peace?

It is that element of society that class themselves as being in the ranks of the really smart folks of the world, who are telling us that the only way to preserve peace is to make everyone into a soldier. That kind of talk always reminds me of the story of the old lady who gave her children a bag of beans to play with while she went to the corner grocery. As she left the house she called back--"And don't poke those beans up your noses, either." Well, of course, there could be only one ending to such a story. The old lady returned to find every child with a bean up it's nose.

This middle west of ours was settled by folks who came over here from the old country to escape compulsory military training. "The old country," for the most part meaning Germany. Yet, a noted author and lecturer, who also claims to be a psychologist, told the chamber of commerce in Omaha during a radio interview that the one way to insure permanent peace was to annihilate Germany.

How come Germany, who has had compulsory military training for generations, is the one obstacle to lasting peace if compulsory military training is to be the means of insuring peace? Or, are we going to refuse to let certain other nations give their children military training while we train ours?

Another argument offered is that army discipline is good for our boys. There is only one kind of discipline worth anything in anyone's life and that is self-discipline. But, it is too late to teach that when a fellow gets to be 18. If by that time the home, the church, or the school hasn't taught him self-discipline; obeying orders issued by an army officer will never do it.

Our war correspondents all agree on one thing. The American soldier stands head and shoulders above all others in their resourcefulness. Many a bad situation has been saved by one single soldier using his head. Many a battle has been won because our boys didn't have to wait for orders from a commanding officer.

It seems this war, instead of giving us freedom from fear, is getting us so panic stricken we are afraid to lay down our arms.
