OREGON GIRLS MAY ENLIST IN WAVES

The opportunity for Oregon girls to enlist in the WAVES has once more been opened in the state with special emphasis being placed on enlistments to fill the need for 10,000 hospital corps WAVES.

Oregon girls who want to travel who want to be with the fighting men and at the same time be trained for a necessary and useful profession are wanted at once.

First stop for enlistees is the U. S. naval training school in New York for eight weeks indoctrination. Those who volunteer and are selected for the hospital corps at completion of recruit training will be given a hospital apprentice rating and sent to a naval hospital for further eight weeks training.

There are now more than 13,000 hospital corps WAVES on duty. Any young woman who is an American citizen between 20 and 36 years of age, has completed at least two years of high school, has no children under 18 years of age and is in normal good health is eligible to enlist in the WAVES and wear the navy blue.

"If we are to maintain our pledge to the men and women of the navy that they will always have the best medical and nursing care, we must have more hospital corps WAVES," said Vice Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the navy. "The skill of the medical officers and corpsmen and WAVES of the navy have established the amazing record of returning 98 per cent of all the wounded to recovery. This record must be maintained."

BOOKLETS ISSUED ON POTATO MARKETING

OMAHA, NEB. July 19--To aid mid-western and western farmers and shippers, three publications on different phases of growing and marketing potatoes have been prepared by the agricultural development department of the Union Pacific railroad.

Two of the booklets—"Potato Storage" and "Harvesting and Shipping Potatoes," were issued some time ago. They have been revised in the light of more recent experiments.

Entirely new is the third brochure which deals with "Handling Early Potatoes." In a forward, F. W. Robinson, senior vice president of the railroad said, "Realizing that many problems are encountered in handling early potatoes during hot summer weather, the Union Pacific railroad has taken an active part in research to determine the best harvesting, loading and shipping methods."

Research and tests were conducted under the direction of J. W. Jarvis, supervisor of agricultural development for the railroad, in cooperation with the U. S. department of agriculture, the Nebraska College of Agriculture, Colorado A and M college, county agricultural agents, numerous growers and shippers.

The three booklets, all profusely illustrated with photographs, graphs and diagrams, have been distributed to potato growers, shippers, county agents and vocational agricultural teachers. Copies may be obtained on request from the agricultural development department, Union Pacific railroad, Omaha 2, Neb.
