COLO. MAN HEADS SUGAR FOUNDATION

DENVER, COLO., Aug. 23—Philip B. Smith, manager of the Greeley and Eaton, Colorado factories of the Great Western Sugar company has been appointed manager of the Beet Sugar Development foundation, a non-profit organization, designed to carry on research work of all domestic beet processors from the Great lakes area to the Pacific.

Twenty-one years of outstanding agricultural and executive achievement with the Great Western organization have ably qualified Mr. Smith to pursue the objectives of the foundation toward further reducing labor requirements of the industry which normally produces three billion pounds of sugar annually, foundation leaders said.

Heading a central organization with headquarters at Fort Collins, Colorado, Mr. Smith will coordinate research activities of beet processors in 18 states with a view to increased mechanization, agronomic and experimental work, affecting all phases of beet growing and harvesting. Advances in utilization of beet by-products will be included. The foundation will work closely with manufacturers of farm machinery and beet sugar activities of the department of agriculture, state experiment stations and agricultural colleges.

Member companies of the new foundation include the Amalgamated Sugar company.

Foundation directors are A. E. Benning of Ogden and Wilford Y. Cannon of Salt Lake City, J. E. Coke of Sa Francisco, Thomas E. Gardiner of Colorado Springs, Jared Lewis of Reno, Idaho, representing Thomas Heath of Preston, D. J. Roach and A. W. Skuderna of Denver and, representing eastern processors, Caldwell Martin and Irving Hale of Denver.

UNEMPLOYMENT NOT HEAVY IN OREGON

With lumbering, transportation and food processing plants badly in need of workers, a fair proportion of those laid off by war industries should be able to find jobs. Because of V-J day coming in the midst of Oregon's busiest season, the unemployment load will probably not reach its height for several months.

Officials of the unemployment compensation commission made this analysis when asked to comment on benefit payments during the readjustment period. Administrator Silas Gaiser explained that the employment service through its 24 local offices is co-operating to handle any reasonable claims load.

"The employment service has listed thousands of jobs with canneries, railroads, lumber and logging firms and other industries," the administrator, said. They are prepared to offer work in accord with the displaced person's skill and experience."

"During this period, most workers should accept the best jobs available at the prevailing wage rates. Some may have to return to pre-war occupations, even though the pay may be temporarily less. This difficult period ahead will require a maximum of patience and understanding."

In case the war plant layoffs come too quickly and there are not enough jobs to go around, the unemployment commission now has nearly $73,000,000 with which to tide workers over. Benefits of from 10 to $18 a week for from five to 20 weeks may be paid to eligible workers each year.

Unemployment claims may be filed against Oregon at any of over 1500 employment offices throughout the country. An interstate exchange system has been built up to take care of migrants from any state or territory.
