GOOD WORK DONE BY SITTON

Dudley L. Sitton has resigned as superintendent of the Malheur experimental area after developing the place from a run-down farm to a modern farming property.

The buildings on the farm have been improved, new buildings erected and the land brought back into a productive state since Sitton opened the station under the supervision of the Oregon State college extension service in 1942.

Some very valuable information has been gained from the work done at the station and increasingly important data will be secured as the extension service has had more time in which to experiment. The station gives the farmers of this area the advantage of knowledge gained through experiments without a cent of cost to them and without any time lost in attempting to find crops suitable for their properties.

Sitton secured some outstanding results in livestock feeding operations and learned some interesting facts relative to the use of fertilizer on sugar beet land.

Mr. Sitton confirms his faith in this section as an agricultural area by starting his farming operations at Cairo junction, a short distance from the Malheur experimental area.

The Big Bend P.T.A. held its monthly social gathering January 31 in the basement of the school house. Instead of the regular program a Dutch auction sale was held.

Everyone furnished something to be sold. The proceeds amounted to over $20. Late in the evening pie and coffee were served. The Big Bend P.T.A. held its monthly business meeting, February 6, which was a week earlier than usual because pictures of Oregon were available to show at that time.

Tribute Paid To Abraham Lincoln

The senator disgressed to comment on the recent filibuster in the senate. He said "It draws an issue that will rise again until we decide whether the majority rule is going to prevail in the United States senate. Under the rule, a minority is empowered to block the will of the majority. Your interests are violated because you send representatives to Washington to vote upon any legislation that is presented."

Senator Morse said he challenged 48 other senators to stay with him in session for 24 hours a day as long as necessary to break the filibuster.

Referring again to Lincoln, the senator said his years in the presidency molded as no other the destiny of the nation.

"Each generation faces its own problems," the speaker stated. "We will survive it if we keep faith in Lincoln's belief in unity."

Senator Morse urged unity of the political parties in perpetuating peace, adding that "There seems no way of winning the peace except through the united nations organization. The alternative is return to selfish nationalism. We cannot justify a course that will lead to another war."

The senator emphasized the fact that this country might not emerge as victor from the next war and urged that matters now decided by economic pressure and military force be decided in the chambers of a world court.

"This peace is going to be a costly peace. Concessions will have to be made if economic warfare is eliminated. Unless economic warfare can be eliminated prospects for preventing military warfare are very good."

"On the matter of taxation, Senator Morse said great political effect prevails throughout the country.

"A good many millions can be made by savings, but 200 or 300 million dollars are only a drop in the debt bucket. However, savings are essential in balancing the annual budget. I believe the distribution of taxes should be much more equitable. The liberties enjoyed by free Americans certainly entitles our government to tax investment from those who have a decent standard of living. I believe the majority want to help protect the value of the dollar.

The war improved the economic condition of millions of people. I think the republican party should stand for a fair tax program to reduce the national debt.

"Some think the solution of the labor strife is passing anti-labor legislation. Let me tell you that anti-strike legislation is unwise. However, labor has no right to adopt policies that infringe on the legal rights of others. Fair wages paid to workers have a direct relation to the price paid to farmers. The interests of labor and the farmers are very much in common."

Grangers Grow Social Crops that benefit all Oregonians

BETTER ROADS

SMOOTH OPEN ROADS from farm to market had their beginning in Grange-sponsored legislation. Today countless farm trucks speed their produce over hard-surfaced or well-gravelled Oregon roads.

The movement for better rural roads as a part of the Grange program is as old as the organization. It will continue to be a basic Grange policy as long as the need exists in any part of the State.

Projects of this nature are as vital a part of Grange activities as better agriculture itself. That is why 28,000 progressive farmers belong to the Oregon State Grange—why membership continues to grow—why the Grange is a dominant force for social progress.

Information about the purpose and accomplishments of the Oregon State Grange is contained in a booklet "Let's Look at the Record". Contact your local Grange for copy, or write direct.
