Ex-Nyssa Youth Skis In India

CALCUTTA, India—On the world's highest ski slope, far above the famous Vale of Kashmir, near Gulmurg, India, American servicemen now enjoy wintertime outings in an otherwise tropical climate. The events are combined sports-fests and sightseeing tours conducted by the American Red Cross for occupation troops in the Calcutta area. Participating in one of the tours recently was Pvt. D. D. Hibbert of Driggs, Idaho. Son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald G. Hibbert, he attended Nyssa union high school before entering the service.

Red Cross sleeveless sweaters, pile-lined jackets, ski parkas and scarfs are provided the servicemen to supplement their thin summer wardrobes. Woolen blankets are supplied in the air transport command planes which fly them to the base of the ski slope. The planes dip briefly over the Taj Mahal at Agra and stop for lunch at Delhi to give the soldiers these "extra added attractions." Red Cross workers supervise recreational details of the tours.

Yank songs, Red Cross fruit cake and coffee, improvised skits and musicals help to pass the short evenings after strenuous days in sub-freezing temperatures and deep snow. Each Red Cross tour to the famed ski slope in India takes more than a week because distances are so great.

A great many promises are being made that a Malheur County PUD would bring lower electric rates.

Stop and analyze that statement for yourself. Just where will the savings come to make these promised lower rates possible?

Can a PUD operate with fewer poles and lines, fewer meters? Of course not. Can a PUD get along with fewer employes, fewer trucks, less prompt repairs? Not without giving poorer service.

Of the total tax burden now shared by individuals and business, the great preponderance is in the form of federal taxes, none of which would be paid by the proposed PUD. When you eliminate a business paying federal taxes, the burden is merely shifted to others, and there is no net saving.

May we suggest that when broad promises of savings through a Malheur PUD are stated, you check them for your own satisfaction.
